Three Uptown Properties Gain $307.9 Thousand in Tax Rebates

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

The Common Council gave its approval to tax reductions on three uptown properties for a total of $307,900, which will cost the city and the school board some $25,000 in rebates, to high-light Tuesday night's regular meeting of the aldermen.

The biggest rebate went to Kinton Realty Inc. of 37-67 Albany Avenue, a reduction on the assessed value of its property from $146,100 to $105,000 for the years 1965-1968 and 1970-1972. Norman Serinsky had property he owns at 66-68 North Front Street reduced from a 1972 assessment of $18,450 to $7,750 and Herbert Gertner had properties at 90-92 Wall Street and 39 John Street reduced from a 1972 assessment of $17,500 to $8,000.

Those reductions followed on the heels of what is believed to be record assessment reductions for Strelene Realty, owners of Hudson Cement on North Street for a total of almost $690,000 in assessments over a five-year retroactive period. The city and the school board had to pay almost $90,000 between them in rebates on that case.

In other action, the aldermen voted increased benefits to senior citizens and to city policemen. The allowable income for a senior citizen to be given a 50 per cent tax reduction has been raised from $4,000 to $5,000, retroactive to Jan. 1 of this year—Alderman Brian D. Smith (R-Third Ward) said he would like it raised to $6,000 "the next time" so as to coincide with the county's $6,000 minimum — and the police were granted a 20-year retirement plan, effective the end of this month. Alderman John E. Finch (D-Fifth Ward), pointed out that the increased benefits for policemen were "just routine" since the city had agreed to them in a contract last year.

Urban renewal was a subject of frequent legislation last night with the aldermen first giving the Urban Renewal Agency permission to mandate underground power lines in its urban renewal project areas. The Council also approved the sale, for $200, of a small parcel of land owned by the Agency to The Immaculate Conception Church on Delaware Avenue for the use of a parking lot.

Alderman Sims fires first shot in city reappoit battle. Story on page 25.

Two public hearings dates were set. A proposal by the Rondout National Bank to build a branch office on Hurley Avenue on land purchased from the agency for $3,000, will be aired on March 22 at 8 p.m. while a proposal by the Friends of Historic Kingston to purchase the Kierstead House from the Agency for $8,000 and restore it will be held on March 22 at 8:15 p.m. The Kierstead house, is located at the corner of John Street and Green Street.

In another matter relating to the Department of Housing and Urban Development, the Council voted to allow Alderman Clarence Stoutenburg (D-Fourth Ward), who was not in attendance, to apply for home improvement funds under the Home Improvement Program. The resolution noted that Stoutenburg was not an alderman when he originally made application for the low-interest federal loan in October of 1971. Alderman Clifford G. Sin-sabaugh (D-10th Ward), while voting for the resolution, was critical of the program in general, and stated that an investigation by him was "a real eye opener," specifically, that under the program, work up to the amount of $10,000 can be ordered without resorting to public bid. The city has to advertise bids on all work or materials over $1,500.

In other action, the Council rejected a petition to rezone property on 20-22 and 24-26 Mary's Avenue for a medical building because the petitioner Dr. Yulin Yao did not appear at public hearings or supply plans to state his case.

The aldermen also approved a local law which would ban "smudge pots" in the city for use as warnings at emergency barricades. That goes into effect in August.

A no-parking ordinance on Lucas Avenue in the area of Congregation Agudas Achim was rescinded.

Two resolutions designating Pilgrim Furniture of Greenkill Avenue as developers in the Broadway East Project were also rescinded; the developer said he could not carry out his plans.

Alderman Edmond J. Roux (R-Ninth Ward) complained about safety conditions between Abrynn Street and Murray Street on Delaware Avenue and said he would offer a resolution next month requiring the city to build a fence. Roux said he wrote the Department of Public Works a month ago and has had no response.

The meeting was adjourned in memory of former Ninth Ward Alderman Fred C. Harder who died on Friday.

It named seven of the guerrillas —their guerrilla code names — as Saig, Gamal, Mahir, Abu Ghassan, Tariq, Khalid and Abu Tariq.

A number of Sudanese lawyers already have volunteered to defend the terrorists. It is expected that the presidents of the Algerian and Egyptian bar associations also will volunteer. Numeiry described the guer-rilla occupation of the embassy and the murders "a massacre" and a "bloody act, foolish and criminal."

"This crime, which was committed on Sudanese soil, is punishable by Sudanese law and will be handled by Sudanese courts in accordance with the republican orders," Numeiry said.

"I will allow justice to take its course," he said, "and I am confident that its verdict will be honest and its punishment just."

Under Sudanese law, murder carries the death penalty. Numeiry did not refer to strong suggestions by Secretary of State William P. Rogers that the courts should condemn the eight guerrillas to die and that the government carry out the sentences.

Rogers said Monday that he considered the death penalty "quite appropriate" in this case. Numeiry said Al Fatah's role in the 60-hour siege that ended early Sunday with the surrender of the eight guerrillas was detailed in documents left behind in the office of its Khartoum chief.

Lindsay Declines Run; Three Top Aides Indicted

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mayor

John V. Lindsay said today he would not seek re-election for a third term. The announcement came as three Lindsay administration officials surrendered to police on charges of corruption.

Spokesmen for the mayor declined any comment on the charges.

As the Republican-turned-Democrat held a news conference explaining eight years in office "is long enough for one man," his city tax Commissioner Norman Levy and two other officials surrendered on an indictment obtained by the state's special anticorruption prosecutor, Maurice H. Nad-jari.

Accompanied by their attorneys, Levy, Deputy Commissioner of Purchase John R. Fratianni and Ben Israel, who is with the City Parking Violations Bureau in Brooklyn, surrendered shortly before noon.

Details of the indictment were not revealed, but sources said it contained 23 charges, including tampering with governmental records and conspiracy.

Lindsay, who gave up in his

said in a seven-minute state-ment he read at City Hall. "I believe that I could win a third term."

"My love for this city and the work still to be done have tempted me to carry on. "I intend to continue the fight for progressive independent government of New York."

The announcement also clarified the positions of the seven announced candidates for the Democratic mayoral nomination, and it will allow the Liberal party, which is emotionally committed to Lindsay, to take its time in endorsing any of the contenders.

Standing with his wife, Mary, at his side, Lindsay said "I believe that I could win a third term." And he recounted what he felt were the major achievements of his eight years as mayor.

The Mayor, who switched from the Republican to the Democratic party in Aug., 1971, said he expected to be an active voice in city and state politics, and pledged his support to the Democratic party in "years to come."

"These have been challenging years, tough ones for America and its great cities," he said. "I am very proud of what we have accomplished . . . our city held together."

There has been speculation that Lindsay may run in 1974 for governor or for the Senate seat now held by Republican Jacob K. Javits. It was not certain where today's announcement leaves those prospects.

After several terms in Congress as the Republican representative of Manhattan's 17th ("silk stocking") district, Lindsay was elected mayor in 1965 as a Republican.

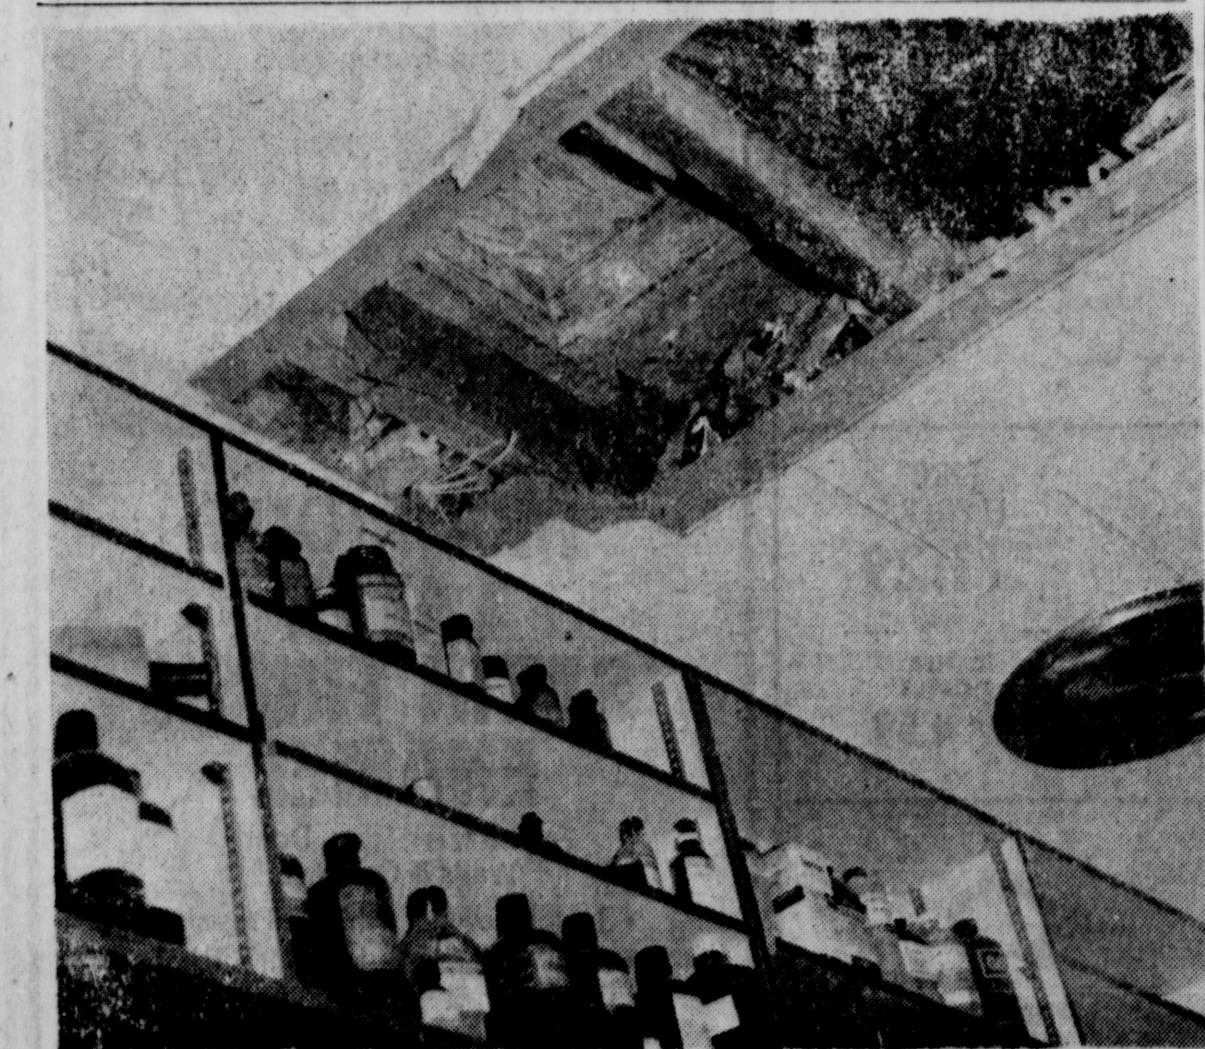

In 1969, denied the Republican nomination for a second term, he won as a Liberal against two Italian-American conservatives—Republican John J. Marchi and Democrat Mario Procaccino.

In the summer of 1971, Lindsay—whose policies all along had seemed more Democratic than Republican—formally became a Democrat. He announced as a contender for the Democratic presidential nomination the following year, but abandoned the bid after a disastrous defeat in the Florida primary.

His conduct earlier this year suggested that he might try for a third term as mayor.

On March 1, he told the New York City Democratic Committee at the Summit Hotel that New York's next mayor should be a progressive and independent Democrat who would not bow to President Nixon or Gov. Nelson Rockefeller.

As recently as Monday, he received a standing ovation at a Liberal party meeting as the "Liberals' incumbent." At that meeting, he hinted he might run for mayor, saying he would appreciate Liberal support if he did so.

ENTRY POINT — A hole cut between roof beams enabled a thief or thieves to enter the DD-Hy-Way Pharmacy in Rosendale and make off with drugs, cigarettes, and watches some time Monday night or early Tuesday. Owner James DiDonna said the precise manner in which the cut was made from the outside might indicate that the building had been previously measured to insure entry at this particular point above the drug dispensing counter. 'Roofers' Robs Drug Store

ROSENDALE — Someone entered the DD Hy-Way Pharmacy in Towne Plaza on Route 32 some time Monday night or early Tuesday by cutting a hole in the roof, took the firm's display of wrist watches and several cartons of cigarettes, and cleaned out the entire drug supply.

James DiDonna, the firm's owner and manager, said the entry apparently was made some time between 9 p. m. Monday when the firm closed for the night and 4 a. m. Tuesday, when a luncheonette two doors away in the shopping center opened for business.

The successful thief or thieves first sawed a hole in the flat wooden roof that covers several small business firms in the shopping center, then cut a hole approximately 12 by 12 inches between beams in the drug store roof over the drug dispensing counter at the rear of the store.

DiDonna said that the locked drug cabinet in the prescription filling area had been forced open. Missing is the firm's entire inventory of narcotic drugs including amphetamines, cocaine, morphine, and several other opium-derived prescription drugs. DiDonna said the drugs were valued at approximately $700.

The only other items disturbed were a display of wrist watches and the cigarettes stored by BCI Investigator Edward V. Whalen and Trooper J. C. Mikesh of the Hurley State Police station.

Board Plans Appeal on Dr. Arnold

SAUGERTIES At a special meeting Monday night, the Saugerties Board of Education voted 5-3 to appeal the Feb. 26 decision by the Acting Commissioner of Education that reinstated Dr. Dexter O. Arnold as Superintendent of Schools.

The school board's attorney, Carroll J. Mealey of Albany, confirmed that the board will institute Article 78 proceedings by filing a petition in Special Term of State Supreme Court asking that the Acting Commissioner's ruling be overturned.

The Supreme Court Justice receiving the petition has the option of determining the issues himself or referring the matter directly to the Appellate Division.

Mealey said he is not only "optimistic" that the Acting Commissioner's ruling will be overturned, but is "looking forward" to trying the case before the courts.

For four months after the school board fired Dr. Arnold on June 30, attorneys tried to prevent the Commissioner of Education from hearing the case. But after numerous injunctions, petitions, court orders and postponements, the Appellate Division ruled that the case should be heard before the Commissioner. The hearing took place Nov. 14 in Albany.

Today, school board clerk Barbara Benjamin refused to provide details of Monday's special meeting. When asked which board members voted in favor of the appeal, she replied, "no comment."

The school board will meet in regular session on Monday.

Mealey said today the school board will appeal Acting Commissioner Gordon M. Ambach's ruling on four major grounds — is based on the school board's contention that there was not sufficient evidence supplied by Dr. Arnold's attorneys (Rosenblum and Lamb of Saugerties) to support the Acting Commissioner's determination.

The first — evidentiary grounds — is based on the school board's contention that there was not sufficient evidence supplied by Dr. Arnold's attorneys (Rosenblum and Lamb of Saugerties) to support the Acting Commissioner's determination.

In addition, said Mealey, "The entire decision of the Commissioner is based upon a standard set forth under section 30-20 of the State Education Law providing for the dismissal of teachers in a tenure situation. It has no applicability for a Superintendent."

The school board's third main point is that the contract with

Dr. Arnold is not a valid contract.

Finally, the school board maintains that the Commissioner does not have jurisdiction over a dispute between a school board and its superintendent.

It was on this latter point that the school board based its appeal to the courts. But the Appellate Division ruled that the Commissioner does have jurisdiction.

In its appeal this time, the school board will maintain that Section 17-11 of the Education Law be considered as a basis for appeal. That section for its appeal.

stipulates, according to Mealey, that it is the power of the school board to hire and fire a Superintendent, and that a Superintendent may be dismissed by a majority vote of a school board without a prior hearing and without detailed charges being filed.

Mealey said there are numerous precedents for Section 17-11 to be invoked in this case, with several of the determinations made after breach of contract was proved.

It is this point, then, that the school board will attempt to prove, said Mealey, as the basis for appeal. That section for its appeal.

Music Producer Dies in Collision

WOODSTOCK Michael F. Jeffery, a Woodstock music producer who was instrumental in launching the meteoric careers of rock singers Janis Joplin and Jimi Hendrix, was among 68 persons killed Monday when two Spanish airliners collided over France.

Jeffery resided on Wylie Lane in Woodstock at the time of his death. He also had a residence in New York City.

A native of England, the 39-year-old Jeffery was en route to London after a weekend in Majorca when the Iberia Airlines DC9 exploded in mid-air after colliding with a charter jet.

Jeffery had resided in Woodstock for some five years. He was not married. Survivors include his parents, who reside in England.

An internationally-known music producer, Jeffery owned two recording studios: Mead Mountain Music in Woodstock and Electric Lady Studios, Inc., at 52 West 8th Street in New York City.

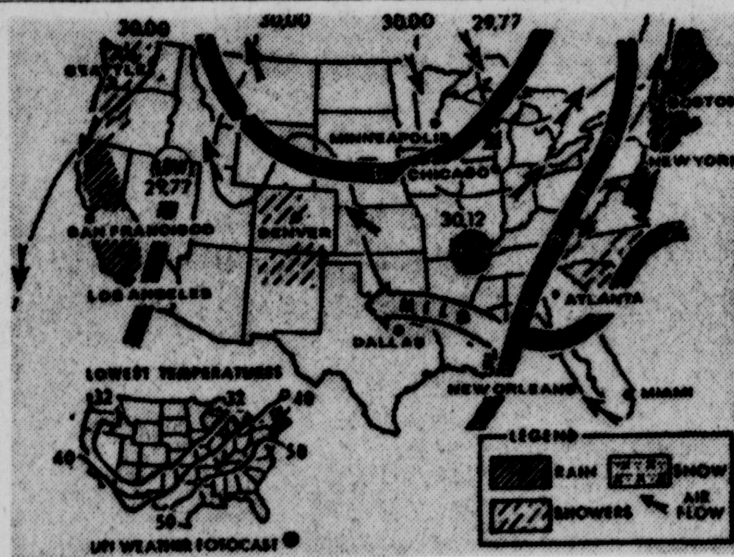

Contacted at the Greenwich Village offices of Electric Lady Studios, a company spokesman declined comment on Jeffery's death.

Jeffery was perhaps best known for his association with the two explosive rock stars, Hendrix and Miss Joplin. Both died suddenly in 1970.

Considered the greatest white blues singer of all time, Miss Joplin began her career with engagements in a number of small nightclubs on the West Coast. She earned national acclaim in 1967 as the raspy-voiced lead singer with Big Brother and the Holding Company before breaking during the three days of the group a year later, Jeffery now-legendary "Aquarius" recordings.

Hendrix, rock music's premier electric guitarist in the 1960's, was the flamboyant star of the 1969 Woodstock Festival in Bethel. He stayed at Jeffery's Woodstock home before breaking during the three days of the group a year later, Jeffery now-legendary "Aquarius" recordings.

Burt, Sarah Ordered to Testify

ACCUSED OF 'ARROGANCE' — Movie stars Burt Reynolds and Sarah Miles were accused of "arrogance" in their attempts to avoid testifying at an inquest into the drug death of Miss Miles' business manager, David Whiting, 26, in the bathroom of Miss Miles' motel room. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

New Idea Injected Into Drug Debate

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Saying "Senior Power" buttons, pected. A continuing court fight ing "you have to be imaginative and creative" in developing a deterrent to drug addiction, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller

The demonstrators asked for state action to ensure that Medicaid payments continue for thousands of older citizens who would become ineligible because of the 20 per cent hike in Social Security payments. They also called for state guarantees against any decreases in aid to the aged, blind and disabled.

Rockefeller told a League of Women Voters conference Tuesday that he might leave open the possibility of parole for hard-drug pushers and addicts who would receive life sentences under his proposals.

The governor's original recommendations, already submitted in the form of legislation and undergoing review by legislative committees, would mandate life sentences for all convicted hard-drug pushers, whatever the amount of drugs sold, and for addicts convicted of committing crimes while under the influence of drugs. None would have a chance for plea bargaining, probation or parole.

This hint of a softening in Rockefeller's hard-line anti-drug stand was one of the major developments of a busy day at the Capitol.

Seniors Stage Capitol Rally

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — An estimated 6,000 senior citizens rallied in front of the Capitol Tuesday to urge passage of measures aimed at increasing benefits to the elderly.

The demonstrators, most of them from New York City, arrived by bus to attend a series of brief hearings with legislators from their districts. They ignored chilly March weather to gather around the front of the Capitol steps.

New York City Deputy Mayor Edward A. Morrison told the crowd "to urge the state legislature to halt their continuing disregard for the lives and welfare of our aged citizens."

He said swift passage of new legislation in such areas as rent control and revised standards for Medicaid eligibility is

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Burt Reynolds and Sarah Miles must face cross examination on their stories of what happened when her business manager died of a drug overdose in her motel room while she was spending the night with Reynolds.

A Superior Court judge Tuesday rejected the film stars' argument that they should be excused from testifying at an inquest into the death of David Whiting, 26.

Attorneys for Reynolds and Miss Miles had obtained an order preventing them from being subpoenaed on the grounds their appearance at the inquest would "make a spectacle of them."

Reynolds told reporters he was afraid small-town officials might try to capitalize on the publicity potential if he was forced to appear on the witness stand.

Judge Charles Hardy in effect revoked his earlier order protecting Reynolds, Miss Miles and her maid, Jane Evans, from subpoenas issued by Mulford Windsor, justice of the peace and acting coroner in Gila Bend, Ariz.

Hardy ruled in favor of arguments presented by a lawyer for Whiting's mother, who maintained that she had a right to have Reynolds and Miss Miles cross examined on the facts surrounding her son's death.

Windsor said he would reopen next week the inquest into Whiting's death and order the movie stars to testify. The inquest had been suspended because of their absence.

Whiting's body was found Feb. 11 in the bathroom of Miss Miles' motel room at Gila Bend. Authorities said he had died of an overdose of drugs, mainly a sleeping potion called methadqualone, but also had a scalp wound which could have been caused by a fall in a drugged stupor.

John P. Frank, the attorney representing Whiting's mother, Mrs. Louise Campbell of London, argued that Whiting might have been "bashed on the head with a blunt instrument" before taking the drugs.

Reynolds and Miss Miles, in southern Arizona to costar in "The Man Who Loved Cat Dancing," told police they attended a birthday party for Reynolds, Miss Miles, wife of screenwriter Robert Bolt, said she returned to her motel room at 3 a.m. to find Whiting waiting for her.

She described Whiting as "possessive." He demanded to know where she had been, she said, and then started beating her, bruising her forehead and cutting her lip. Her maid called Reynolds, who came to her aid and took her back to his room, where she took refuge for the night.

She found Whiting's body on her return to her room the next day, she said.

Reynolds and Miss Miles denied there was any sexual involvement. Reynolds said he was just coming to the aid of a woman in distress and Miss Miles said she was too disfigured by the beating to be an attractive sex partner.

Anti-Amnesty Speech: Cheers for Agnew

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Spiro T. Agnew said Tuesday night the United States must be "unyielding" in refusing amnesty to men who would not serve in the Vietnam war. His audience of veterans responded with cheers, whistles and a standing ovation.

Three returned prisoners of war sat at the head table at a Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) dinner as the vice president delivered his assessment.

"Until they recognize that it is they who have erred and not the country, we must be unyielding in how we treat them," Agnew said of men who fled the country rather than serve in Vietnam.

"If we simply accepted all of these people back and said 'you're forgiven, you were right, it was an immoral war,' what would happen if trouble broke out 10 or 20 years from now? We would have established a precedent that would encourage those who chose to evade their responsibilities to do so."

Agnew also took a crack at the press for space given to the views of antiwar protesters.

"And of course, just as their views on the war were magnified out of all reasonable proportion by their sympathizers in the media, so now are their views on amnesty being given unjustifiably solicitous attention," Agnew said.

"Scarcely a day passes when we don't find on the editorial pages of some of our prestigious national newspapers essays calling for amnesty."

Agnew said he believed people who make mistakes and "accept the natural consequence of those mistakes" should be given a second chance.

"But those draft dodgers and deserters have not admitted that they are wrong," he said. "On the contrary, they say that the country is wrong and they are right."

The vice president said the POWs were the heroes of the Vietnam war, not the draft dodgers and deserters.

Families Are Waiting For 80 Former POWs

CLARK AIR BASE, Philippines (UPI) — Eighty U.S. prisoners of war, leaving tearful admirers and an unopened bottle of champagne behind, flew home today for reunions with the families and friends they haven't seen for at least five years.

"We'll drink it in your honor," Jean Vahue, wife of an American pilot based in the Philippines, told the departing POWs when officials would not allow her to give the men a bottle of champagne she brought as a going away gift.

A squadron of four C-141 Starliner ambulance planes, each carrying 20 former POWs, departed Clark Air Base in the Philippines at two hour intervals today for military bases in Maryland, Illinois, Texas and California. All were scheduled to be back in the United States by tonight.

Their departure left 56 of the 136 Americans freed Sunday and Monday still undergoing final processing at this Operation Homecoming base.

All but two of the 56 were expected to be aboard three more hospital planes bound for the United States Thursday. The two suspected to be suffering from malaria, have good chances of making the Thursday flights if their conditions permit, sources said.

According to the timetable given by U.S. officials just before the Jan. 27 cease-fire, the third big installment of approximately 150 is due next week. But the North Vietnamese delayed the last repatriation by five days and there was no firm word when they will turn over the next group. There are 282 Americans still held that are supposed to be released by the end of the month.

The departure for the 80 Americans was supposed to be a proper military ceremony with each man saluting a color guard, marching down a red carpet and shaking hands with senior officers before boarding the aircraft.

But by the time the last C-141 was in place on the flight line, the remaining 20 men waded into the crowd, hugged and kissed newly-made friends, shook hands, and collected an assortment of gifts, departure signs and flower leis.

The decision to send the hospital planes, straight to Andrews AFB, Md., Scott AFB, Ill., Kelly AFB, Tex., and Travis AFB, Calif., instead of only to California as with earlier flights was a departure in the usual procedure. It meant that more of the POWs would be able to see their families sooner than on previous flights.

Cambodia Is Ready To Begin Peace Talks

By United Press International

Cambodia, the only Indochina country without a formal cease-fire, said Tuesday it is ready to start peace talks with North Vietnam. The proposal came as U.S. warplanes again flew bombing raids and more fighting persisted in the country.

Fighting also went on in South Vietnam.

In Laos, a Communist spokesman said Tuesday that the Communists have asked the government to set up any required facilities for Pathet Lao participation in the coalition that will rule the country under terms of a Feb. 22 cease-fire.

But the royalist government accused the Pathet Lao of maneuvering post-truce talks to discuss only political issues instead of both political and military matters as provided in the agreement. The two sides also exchanged charges of cease-fire violations.

Cambodian President Lon Nol said in a Tuesday night radio address from Phnom Penh that he is "willing to provide facilities to the North Vietnamese troops to withdraw from our country . . . in the interests of peace." His proposal was in line with previous government policy, statements that said peace can come to Cambodia only when the Hanoi troops leave the country.

U.S. military intelligence reports say most North Vietnamese combat units have already left Cambodia and have infiltrated into South Vietnam. But the reports say an estimated 50,000 Khmer Rouge Communist rebels armed and directed by North Vietnamese cadres are currently pursuing their largest offensive of the war in the country.

The Lon Nol regime so far has refused to consider a compromise with the Khmer Rouge government of deposed Cambodian leader Prince Norodom Sihanouk and has balked even at sitting down at the same bargaining table with the leaders of the rebel movement.

'Sticks and Bones' Drama Postponed by TV Network

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — A television drama about a callous reception given a blind Vietnam veteran returning to his family has been withdrawn by CBS-TV from its Friday schedule after a reported 69 affiliate stations refused to run it.

The network said it would be "unnecessarily abrasive to the feelings of millions of Americans whose lives or attention are at the moment emotionally dominated by the returning POWs and other veterans who have suffered the ravages of war."

The producer of the telecast, Joseph Papp, whose New York Shakespeare Festival organization did the drama, called CBS-TV's action prior censorship.

The play, "Sticks and Bones," adapted from a prize-winning stage drama, depicts the relationship between the blinded veteran and his father, mother and younger brother in angry, satirical terms.

CBS-TV said it was postponing "Sticks and Bones," not canceling it.

Papp said, "I don't accept that. As far as I'm concerned, postponement is a word for backing down." He added that he doesn't think the network will put the drama on, even though it has the rights to it for two years.

A telegram to CBS-TV affiliate stations from network president Robert Wood said: "In light of recent developments, many of us both at the network and among the stations are now convinced that . . . presentation on the air (of 'Sticks and Bones') at this time might be unnecessarily abrasive to the feelings of millions of Americans whose lives or attention are at the moment emotionally dominated by the returning POWs and other veterans who have suffered the ravages of war."

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. government apparently intervened today to help settle a dispute over the exchange of Vietnamese prisoners. The dispute threatened to delay the release of the 286 Americans still held in Communist camps and threatened the U.S.-Vietnamese peacekeeping commission with collapse.

The Saigon government agreed, after an eight-day impasse, to release 6,300 military the 19,734 it still holds—in the second POW exchange. It released 7,000 in the first exchange but lowered the number to 3,000 for the second phase, contending the Communists had not accounted for thousands of missing South Vietnamese troops.

The Communist delegations threatened to boycott the U.S.-Vietnamese Joint Military Commission until Saigon agreed to free more men. They called on the United States, as a signer of the cease-fire agreement, to intervene.

"We consider the lists exchanged in Paris to form the basis for future exchanges," he added.

Bacall . . . Won't Cooperate

Q: Is there a concerted effort to debunk and deglamorize the Kennedys? Who decides these things? — P.S., Bethesda, Md.

A: There's no conspiracy if that's what you mean. It's just that the wheel comes full circle and after years of plus-Kennedy books, the negatives are now taking their turn. It started with David Halberstam's "The Best and the Brightest," analyzing the failures of JFK's aides and appointees. It has continued with British journalist Henry Fairlie's attack in "The Kennedy Promise" and Nancy Gager Clinch's analytically devastating "The Kennedy Neurosis." These sharply critical books represent a natural backlash to years of excessive admiration.

OVERSEAS DIVISION: Does Lauren Bacall know whom she said "no" to recently? The actress is notoriously uncooperative with the press and summarily dismissed a request by the London Times to pose for a photograph. What she didn't know was that the photographer was Lord Snowdon himself — and wouldn't that have been fun?

Q: Sitting here listening to an Artur Schnabel album, I got to wondering how much time a great artist like that spends practicing. Any idea? — W.Z., Chicago.

A: Most artists practice for hours every day, but Rubinstein hardly ever practices, claiming that it destroys spontaneity.

QUICKIES: Agent 007 with a wintertime is her biggest beauty bad back? The new James Bond, actor Roger Moore, cured his with three treatments of acupuncture . . . Controversial film-maker Stanley ("Clockwork Orange") Kubrick relaxes and draws inspiration from looking at blue movies in his spare time . . . Merle Oberon says swimming in the ocean in

A: Moira Shearer is as beautiful as ever, though she no longer dances. She is married to the journalist Ludovic Kennedy (he wrote "The Rillington Place") and has four children. They live outside Edinburgh, Scotland, in a lovely old manor house.

ASKED: Are things shipshape with Peter Fonda? Hmmm. Well, Peter's wife wants him to cool his entire nautical bit. That is to say, get rid of his expensive yacht where she thinks the parties are too wild and keep Peter all at sea. Mrs. Fonda is the daughter of the astute, one-time Howard Hughes aide, Noah Dietrich.

QUESTION YOU NEVER

Readers Write the Editor

Pet Control

Editor, The Freeman:

Something must be done to end the slaughter of our dogs and cats. Most of the litters of kittens and puppies that people take to humane shelters are automatically killed. The problems of weaning, feeding and finding owners for them are just too great. Shelter personnel are sick of the need to kill millions of healthy, intelligent cats and dogs merely as a public convenience.

Persons who own animals and who let them breed indiscriminately should be fined heavily and forced to watch the destruction of the unwanted kittens and puppies.

We should have a program of animal birth control. Many pet owners cannot afford the high cost charged by the vets to neuter and spay animals. The price is much too high, I agree. But I couldn't elect representatives of the city and county pay a vet on a set salary to hold a clinic once or twice a week to perform the neutering and spaying of animals for a minimum fee for those who could pay something and free for those who could not pay? If these officials can pay a dog catcher and pay a vet to catch and kill animals — why not pay to save a pet and to cut down on the unwanted pet explosion?

Sincerely,
Dorothy Galitzky

Frank Complaint

Editor, The Freeman:

Here is a letter I've written to Jack Kahn, president of the Ontario school board. It is of concern to every parent of a school-age child in the Ontario district.

Dear Mr. Kahn:

At the December school board meeting you made public a report by Howard Lewis that conveyed Consumers Union's recommendations that frankfurters be discontinued in the school lunch program.

CU warned that franks are a possible health hazard — and a waste of money. Ingredients of frankfurters may promote cancer, the head of the CU Foods Division told Mr. Lewis. Sodium nitrate, used as a preservative, can join with compounds in the body called amines to form nitrosamines, which are known to be carcinogenic.

Furthermore, CU concluded that franks are nutritionally a poor buy. They contain half the protein and twice the fat of hamburgers, a lunch item that is also popular but much more nutritious and thus could well substitute for franks.

In light of these findings, CU advised that it would be "prudent" to not eat frankfurters.

Yet — months after you've received this information — franks are still served in school lunches. Twice last month (Feb. 12 and 27). Three times this month (March 5, 13 and 26).

As a parent whose child eats the school lunch, I'm upset over your ignoring this impartial report — quoting an unimpeachable source warning of a potential threat to children's health.

If so much evidence cannot bring about so small a change, what hope is there for any improvement in the Ontario school system?

Sincerely yours,
IRIS BRESLER
Woodstock

Counting Device Patent

Robert D. Young of Accord has been granted a patent on a novel and improved device for counting items in stacks of paper money, food stamps, and similar items.

Young's patent, issued Jan. 16, has been assigned to the Canyon Research Corporation of Accord.

The device overcomes the weakness of most counting devices, which separate items by vacuum pickup and often pick up more than one item when they stick together. Young's counting device first engages and separates one end of the item being counted to be sure that another item is not stuck to it. The counter head then displaces the end of the item and a register is advanced to note the count and complete the cycle.

Other advantages claimed for the device include counter head contact only with the parts of items which are relatively free from defects, bands do not have to be removed when banded items are being counted, speed of counting can be adjusted so the operator can check the denomination of currency while it is being counted, and optical scanning may be used to relieve the operator of the denomination check if desired.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, MARCH 7, 1973

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The nation's booming, $3 billion mobile home industry is plagued with sloppy workmanship, safety defects and buyer-be-damned sales practices.

This is the tentative conclusion of the Center for Auto Safety, which is conducting an 18-month investigation of industry abuses. The center, founded by Ralph Nader, will present its findings in a voluminous report to be published in the fall. Here are some of its astonishing discoveries:

— Warranties are often worthless or extend only three months. Thus, a home bought in the spring or summer may have faulty insulation, which wouldn't be discovered until winter after the warranty was dead. One of the chapters in the report will be called: "What the Mobile Home Warranty Delivers Best: Runaround."

— Finance charges often include life, credit-risk and other insurance. Combined with high interest rates, they may double the basic cost of a mobile home from $5,000 to $10,000.

— To make the huge homes on wheels look gaudier, the makers use slick decores called "Alabama flash" because they originated with Alabama manufacturers. When this plastic and trim catches on fire, the results can be catastrophic. Highly flammable wood paneling is often used. Because of the fire danger, the threat to occupants of mobile homes is about three times greater than to those who live in conventional, one-unit homes. — Solid bolting is rare. More often, glue and inadequate, air-driven nails are used. Owners have complained that two-by-three supports are used instead of the advertised two-by-four. Then the cheaper construction is papered over with "Alabama flash."

Hot Seat

— Mobile home firms have mistakenly hooked up their hot water pipes to toilets, causing one injured owner to complain to Nader about the scalding effect. . . when answering the call of nature.

— Once on cinder blocks in a trailer park, mobile homes have blown over and fallen apart. Roofs have also caved in. Some homes bend out of shape while being towed from the sales lot to the mobile home park.

— One owner had such a ferocious air lead in his wall that when he held sheeting up to the hole, it flagged out horizontally.

— Another new home had 37 separate defects. Yet many firms refuse to do anything about the defects and safety complaints. There has been so little research in this area that owners, caged in their own jerrybuilt mobile homes, are human guinea pigs.

— The center's research also deals with mobile home parks. Many are owned by the same people who sell the trailers. One park charges five dollars extra for each child, while another assesses pets on a per-pound basis. Every park, apparently, has its own private laws. One requires pizza deliverymen to pay a 35-cent fee for each pizza delivered. The surcharge of course, is passed on to the customer.

Most of the 600,000 mobile homes sold each year are bought by elderly retired couples or young married couples. They aren't always cheated. Some are able to buy fine houses-on-wheels.

And in some trailer parks, senior citizens live happily and economically with the potluck suppers, shuffleboards and huge "trikes" on which they wheel around to visit friends.

The trade association, which represents the mobile home industry, is also encouraging its members to set higher standards.

WASHINGTON WHIRL

Gag Order — John J. Caulfield, one of the bigwigs at the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, has issued stern orders to regional directors to stop their people from talking to newsmen. In a memo that also wasn't supposed to reach newsmen, he declared that "misguided releases of sensitive . . . information will no longer be tolerated. Management controls must be tightened to safeguard against these occurrences." He directed that "all releases of information relating to policy, procedures, investigative plans, manpower utilization and comments concerning ongoing investigations must be approved." A spokesman told us the directive was intended to protect the rights of those under investigation. The directive itself warned that unauthorized information "could prove devastating to Bureau goals."

Memo to World — Anti-poverty executioner Howard Phillips has now issued what he calls "A Memorandum to the World" to explain how he is cancelling anti-poverty programs. Phillips contends in his memo that he won't authorize the gutting of any anti-poverty program "in advance of a fair and thorough review of the merits." Meanwhile, he adds, grantees can assure "that they are being extended at their present level of funding for an additional 30 days." This means the official policy is to let the anti-poverty projects continue one month at a time.

High Living — Four Marine Corps generals, stationed at Quantico, Va., live in such grand style that the post recently raised money by permitting enlisted men's wives to inspect the quarters at one dollar per person. Tickets were sold at the generals' homes and a bus was detailed to transport all the gawking onlookers. Proceeds went to support a retirement home for Marine Corps widows.

The historians say that George Washington never lied. This makes him appear to be completely inhuman. He lied at least once. He had sent a military expedition north of the Ohio to aid settlers who were being raided and killed by hostile Indians. In a report to the Congress, President Washington said he had no idea "at the moment" whether the expeditionary force had repelled the Indians. As he uttered the words, he had on his desk a week-old letter from Brigadier General Josiah Harmar, who led the expedition. It stated that he had been defeated by the Indians and had lost 180 men. Cost of Devaluation

While he saw devaluation as the road back toward equilibrium in our balance of payments, Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, also assessed the cost for the United States at $3 billion—$1.5 billion directly and $1.5 billion indirectly—an overall cost of less than $15 for every man, woman and child in the country. Which is not too much to pay for the equilibrium he foresaw.

Burns was testifying before the Senate Banking Committee along with Paul A. Volcker, Undersecretary of the Treasury for Monetary Affairs. Devaluation is already in effect in the world's foreign-exchange markets.

Volcker is the official who made the tour of the monetary capitals of the world, negotiating the devaluation. At last, he said the United States has achieved a set of world exchange rates that should enable the nation to balance its international payments. In these fast-paced negotiations, Volcker found a "clear desire on all sides to achieve changes fully commensurate with the magnitude of the problem."

Both Burns and Volcker said the two changes, the first in the so-called Smithsonian compromise of 14 months ago and the recent rate exchanges "have placed us squarely on the road back toward equilibrium in our balance of payments." Burns added that there should be a definite goal of not more than two or three years for the deficits to end.

One thing no one figured on was the effect of dollar devaluation on the Soviet Union. With loans of $40 billion in Eurodollars granted the Soviet by European financial institutions, the 10 per cent discount in its value indirectly has more than paid for all Moscow's massive imports of grain and fodder.

Licensed Tax Preparers

Nearly half of all taxpayers had someone else prepare their tax returns last year, according to spot checks made by the Internal Revenue Service. Many contained fraudulent statements—such as claims for non-existing dependants, and many more were simply inaccurate. A Senate Appropriations subcommittee is holding hearings on a proposal to license commercial tax preparers to make sure they are competent.

Professor L. Hart Wright, of the University of Michigan Law School, proposed that the nation's 200,000 commercial tax-return preparers be licensed according to their ability to pass tests of increasing difficulty. The registration number given the applicant would designate the level of complexity in a taxpayer's finances he is certified to be able to cope with.

Henry W. Block, head of the nation's largest organization which prepares tax returns commercially, argued for registration of the tax preparers, rather than for examinations and certifications. But Senator Abram A. Ribicoff's bill would require testing and certification of anyone who prepares more than 25 tax returns a year for a fee. Attorneys, certified public accountants and state-licensed accountants would be exempt from the test.

IRS, after discovering how many commercially-prepared returns were faulty, proposed a system of penalties for various types of wrongdoing. The fault is the preparers. He should be certified and to make sure he conforms, fined for his wrongdoing.

WASHINGTON — The clearest signal of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's rapid movement toward the middle of the road came recently when he invited Ben F. Wattenberg, a leading theorist of centrist Democratic politics, to a secret luncheon in his Capitol Hill office.

Kennedy's new-politics admirers would have been irritated to know he sought out Wattenberg, who remains a key advisor to Sen. Henry M. Jackson and the driving force behind the new coalition for a Democratic Majority (CDM).

But they would have been appalled that Kennedy told Wattenberg he feels the party must move back toward the center to regain the blue-collar vote, adding that the party has the wrong side of such inflammatory social issues as compulsory school busing.

Kennedy has been meeting privately with Democratic national chairman Robert Strauss, AFL-CIO operatives and other party centrists in key positions. But the seriousness of his move toward moderation is indicated by his seeking out Wattenberg, a non-politician with views obnoxious to Kennedy's new-politics friends.

A Footnote: Kennedy

privately contends the 1976 Democratic nominee must win some electoral votes from the South — contradicting new-politics theorists who feel Dixie is Republican for the foreseeable future. Although a speech at the University of Virginia April 9 is the only Southern engagement on Kennedy's present calendar, he is expected to book Deep South speeches this year.

Poverty Politics
In fighting President Nixon's evisceration of the anti-poverty program, the Community Action Program (CAP) in Salt Lake City is doing again what has caused so much trouble for anti-poverty activists all over the country: a federally-financed agency moving into political action against elected public officials.

An anti-Nixon flier distributed in Salt Lake City does not disclose its sponsors but in fact was prepared at and mailed from the county CAP office, issuing this broadside:

"Dick Nixon has a budget for big business. Nixon proposes the elimination or severe cutbacks of all programs providing services to those most in need, the poor, lower income and elderly persons, with no funds for local government to pick up these programs. In contrast, the budget items of defense, space, etc., are in-

Those wanting more information are given two unidentified Salt Lake City telephone numbers — one the CAP office, the other the Model Cities office across the street. Callers are asked to volunteer to fight the Nixon program.

When we called the CAP office, we were told to contact the office's full-time central city coordinator, James Reed. But Reed, whose salary is partially paid by the federal government, told us he was not in charge of handling the flier. Who is? "The people are in charge," he declared.

Reed admitted the flier had been prepared at the CAP office and mailed on their subsidized postage meter in the CAP mailing list. But he claimed that none of the $806,000 in annual federal funds for the Salt Lake County CAP was used (which would be illegal), contending the flier was financed with funds from the county government. Actually, federal and local funds in such anti-poverty offices are often hopelessly intermingled.

Panama Crisis?
A confidential letter warning that "uncontrollable demonstrations" against the U.S. in the Panama Canal Zone may break out when the United Nations Security Council meets in Panama

March 15 has been sent to President Nixon by nine members of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

The Security Council meeting, approved in January over strong U.S. protest, "will provide a diplomatic and propaganda forum for attacks against the U.S. position in the zone." The nine Senators said. They range from dovish Democratic Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri to hawkish Republican Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina.

Panamanian nationalists have been demanding the end of U.S. sovereignty in the Canal Zone for years, but the anti-American agitation has been increasing, with President Nixon regularly attacked as a "murderer" in the press. The government recently issued an order demanding an end to such vitriol until after the Security Council meeting.

Panama asked for the special meeting to "publicize" the issue of extraterritorial U.S. rights. The results of that publicity, the nine Senators fear, could be "to stimulate nationalist fears" and provoke anti-U.S. rioting. They asked for a meeting with Mr. Nixon and urged him to make absolutely clear that the U.S. will not tolerate "any encroachment upon our present . . . rights."

When Washington Told a Lie

There is a great difference between truth and the whole truth. It is truth, for example, that George Washington was the Father of his Country and, beyond argument, one of the most noble humans in history. He was first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen.

He was also dull. He didn't tell his father that he had chopped that cherry tree down. Historical research shows no cut tree, and no questions asked. Nor did he throw a silver dollar across the Potomac. George Washington seldom had one to throw.

The original story was not the Potomac; it was the Rappahannock. And it wasn't a silver dollar; it was a stone. In later life, he said he had never tried to toss a stone across a river.

There are scores of qualified biographies of Washington — almost all of them difficult to write because he was so virtuous, so noble. Bad guys make the front page. Good guys make the obituary columns.

Ralph K. Andrist, apparently despairing of making G. Washington exciting, edited the Founding Fathers' own letters and dispatches for Harper & Row to make a biography of sorts. Mr. Andrist is one of the few who learned that the first President had problems with his mother and his brother Samuel. Money problems. On Jan. 16, 1783, he wrote a painful note to his brother Jack:

"... In God's name how did my Brother Saml, contrive to get himself so enormously in debt? Was it by purchases? By misfortunes? or sheer indolence & inattention to business? ... In the list of his debts did it appear that I had a claim upon him for the purchase money of the Land I sold Pendleton on Bullskin? I have never received a farthing for it."

"I have lately received a letter from my Mother in which she complains of the knavery of the Overseer at the little Falls Quarter — that she says she can get nothing from him. It is pretty evident, I believe, that I get nothing from thence, while I have the annual rent of between Eighty & an hundred pounds to pay."

"This, like every other matter of private concern, with me, has been totally neglected; but it is too much while I am suffering in every other way (and hardly able to keep my own Estate from sale) to be saddled with all the expence of hers & not be able to derive the smallest return from it."

At the time, he was trying to win American freedom from England in battle. Soldiers — especially from New Jersey — were deserting in groups. To stop it he ordered his generals to round them up, find the ringleaders, and hang a few.

His estate at Mount Vernon, Virginia, was neglected and weedy. Tenant farmers did not pay rent. Slaves, whom he treated well, were lazy. All his teeth had been drawn and the false ones were of varying sizes, colors and origins.

Much of the time, he was a man in silent pain. Washington did not want to be President, but the electors made him their unanimous choice. He begged the new government to call the capital city "Federal City," but they called it Washington, to his embarrassment.

The Continental Congress paid him in scrip; he lost money on the deal. He was almost bankrupt as President, yet he asked "no compensation, just $25,000 a year as expenses." The Federal government had no money, no tax structure, and depended on the 13 states to contribute.

Most of them refused, or sent pittance. Rhode Island refused even to send a representative to the Continental Congress. It required two four-year terms merely to weld the colonies into something like a "United States."

The historians say that George Washington never lied. This makes him appear to be completely inhuman. He lied at least once. He had sent a military expedition north of the Ohio to aid settlers who were being raided and killed by hostile Indians.

In a report to the Congress, President Washington said he had no idea "at the moment" whether the expeditionary force had repelled the Indians.

As he uttered the words, he had on his desk a week-old letter from Brigadier General Josiah Harmar, who led the expedition. It stated that he had been defeated by the Indians and had lost 180 men.

Troop Strength Below 10,000 Men

U.S. Machine in Southeast Asia Nearly Apart

SAIGON (AP) — The great military machine ever seen in Southeast Asia is rapidly being pulled apart, without fanfare or fanfare.

The closing notices have been up all over South Vietnam since the Jan. 28 cease-fire opened the last phase of American involvement in the Vietnam war.

With only 23 days left for the U.S. military pullout under terms of the agreement signed in Paris, U.S. troop strength by midnight Monday had dipped to 10,000 men, leaving the 1st Aviation Brigade, a helicopter outfit, and the 716th Military Police Battalion the biggest units in country. Each has about 350 men.

Reversing the trend of a decade, ships are heading down the winding Saigon River to the sea low in the water, carrying home to U.S. ports thousands of tons of trucks, guns, helicopters and planes.

Sources close to the logistical command report that, with a little over three weeks remaining to pullout date, cargo planes and freighters have removed 61 per cent of the homegoing 130,000 tons of U.S. military hardware and 75 per cent of the estimated 100,000 tons of ordnance being sent to Korea for the South Korean army.

Two DC8 passenger planes, shuttling between Cam Ranh Bay and Seoul, had managed to return some 22,000 of the 35,369 Korean troops stationed along the northeastern coast when the cease-fire was signed. Another 906 sailed home on a U.S. troopship.

The logistical teams assigned to folding up Uncle Sam's military big top regarded the 60-day pullout operation "as only a drop in the bucket" compared with shipping home more than 2½ million tons of tanks, trucks, planes and guns since President Nixon began winding down the U.S. involvement in 1969.

"What's going out now represents only three per cent of the cargo that has been shipped back so far," said a high-ranking source.

Besides the tonnage going home, known in military language as "retrograde cargo," the United States has turned over to the South Vietnamese all its remaining ammunition and millions of dollars worth of planes, helicopters and other weapons, including long-range 175mm howitzers and many M48 tanks.

The biggest and most expensive items being shipped home are 21 Delong floating docks, valued at more than $55 million, that stood on stilts in the waters off Cam Ranh Bay. Vung Tau and Qui Nhon to receive U.S. cargo ships bringing over the objects of war.

After more than six years in the waters off Vietnam, the Uncle Sam's homegoing manifest sheet is half a dozen electrical transformers, each valued in about $250,000. "These are very important to our combat reserve," said a military spokesman.

Cargo pushers at Da Nang, on the northeast coast, and at Newport, Saigon's deep-water port built by the Americans, are busy swinging aboard military property disposal office freighters several hundred Chinook helicopters, hundreds of 100,000 tons of junk, ranging from still usable bulldozers and generators to mountains of battered tanks and jeeps and wornout tires, rising in rusty heaps over the empty wastes of what was once the huge Long Binh 1st Logistical Command.

More than $50 million in sales of "serviceable" scrap, as it is officially termed, have been flogged to junk dealers, with Singapore bringing the best prices.

Identity Crisis For 22 Million Chinese People

SINGAPORE (AP) — The 22 million Chinese who don't live in China have an identity crisis. The mirror leaves no doubt they are the overseas Chinese, but many are not sure what their heritage means as China itself discards some of its ancient customs.

"It's the hardest thing in the world to be now," says an American of Chinese descent who lives in Taipei. "You never know what you are."

A Singapore girl with Chinese-born parents and a British husband sums up her situation: "Culturally, I'm Chinese. Socially, I'm Singaporean. Intellectually, I'm international."

Many of these people would like to settle in and assimilate where they are, but often that's difficult. Large numbers can't attain citizenship in Southeast Asian nations their great-grandfathers helped to build.

Peking's emergence as a world power has given them something besides Ming vases to fire their pride, awakening a major wave of cultural and ethnic feeling from Mauritius to Manhattan.

"I could never live in China," runs a typical comment. "But now, as a Chinese, I feel proud."

The China Travel Service in Hong Kong is deluged with overseas applicants wanting to visit the homeland. Officials estimate about 100 American Chinese go in each month.

Overseas Chinese who return report they were treated well, especially if they spoke the language. They were separated from other foreigners. Authorities discouraged them from mingling too freely with local Chinese.

To many, communities overseas are more "Chinese" than China. Visitors back from Peking report surprise at how things differed from the mental pictures—or memories—they had brought with them.

"When the Chinese went overseas, the culture just froze for them," observed one Western expert. "They hung on to what they remembered because they had to have something to keep them Chinese."

In Peking, a dead relative is dispatched without great ceremony. In Kuala Lumpur, women are hired to wail as the departed uncle is trucked behind a brass band to the crematorium where mourners eat noodles and drink brandy.

Those with fortitude, patience and luck tour the mainland. A number come out disillusioned but a few find their fires stoked for seeking change back home.

"I didn't feel particularly proud but I was impressed—all the people you meet in China share the same views," said Pang Cheng Lian, a respected Singapore journalist who is ethnically Chinese.

For others, it's more than language. "So you don't like tofu," joked a culturally wounded San Francisco Chinese when a Jewish friend disdained bean curd in a Hong Kong restaurant. "Order some salami."

Inaugural Wood Salvaged For Sale

WASHINGTON (AP) — The wood from President Nixon's inaugural stand has been salvaged for sale to builders, souvenir hunters—and one promoter who is making it into plaques to sell for $100 apiece.

Ed Streeky, an Arlington, Va., free-lance photographer, said he is having wood from inaugural-stand benches cut up, affixing brass plates and color photographs of the ceremony, and selling the plaques.

Streeky said he has sold 87 of his $100 souvenirs so far.

That's just one of the more exotic uses of the half-million board feet of lumber from the stand and seats built for the President's second inauguration Jan. 20 at the Capitol.

Jacob Hoffman, who won the contract to dismantle the stands and sell the wood, said he's sold about 200,000 board feet of it for about $30,000. One man bought $6,000 worth to build a beach house on the Virginia coast, he said and a fireman bought a load for work at an apartment house he owns.

"All kinds of people buy it, even some of the congressmen and senators," Hoffman said. "The Capitol policemen bought some. Lots of people."

Streeky paid Hoffman $100 for 500 feet of wooden seats off the President's inaugural platform and made a deal to buy more feet for about $400.

Streeky contracted with a local cabinetmaker to cut the wood into 11-by-14-inch squares and shape the edges. He said board feet of lumber from the stand and seats built for the President's second inauguration has the brass plates inscribed by a local engraver.

Streeky says he's looking for other ways to make money from the scrap wood. "I've got a lot of scraps," he said. "I've got to figure out what to do with the scraps."

City Youth Critical After Auto Accident

ONEONTA near the Route 357 intersection in the Town of Franklin at 2:30 a.m. when his 1963 station wagon failed to negotiate a curve, went off the right side of the road, struck a highway signpost, slammed into a bridge abutment, and came to rest in a small stream.

McDermott was taken first to Fox Hospital in Oneonta for emergency treatment and then transferred to the Albany Medical Center. Authorities there said he is undergoing treatment in the emergency room for a crushed breastbone, a broken right hip, multiple lacerations of the head, and other injuries, and that his condition is critical.

Jon Boschart, 18, of Amherst, a passenger, was admitted to Fox Hospital with chest injuries and lacerations of the scalp. Two other passengers, Richard Wilson, 19, of Kenmore, and Gene Rider, 19, of Apalachin, were released after being treated for scalp lacerations.

State Police identified the four youths as students at the Delhi Agricultural and Technical Institute. They said that speed too fast for conditions was the apparent cause of the accident, which is still under investigation.

Patrol Car Damaged in Paltz Mishap

NEW PALTZ A New Paltz Village police patrol car was damaged Tuesday evening when it was in collision with another vehicle while proceeding on an emergency call for oxygen.

Police said patrolman Dennis Tasker was proceeding through the intersection of Main and Chestnut Streets when the collision occurred. The name of the woman operator of the second vehicle was not immediately available.

The patrol car received damage to two doors and a rear panel. No value was set on the damage to the three-year-old vehicle.

No injuries were reported, police said. Investigation is continuing.

Green Haven Inmate Is Electrocuted

STORMVILLE, N.Y. (UPI)—King Michael Williams, a 31-year-old inmate at Green Haven state prison, was electrocuted in his cell Tuesday in an apparent suicide, state police said.

Williams, described as a former resident of New York City, was serving a 25-year life sentence for murder. He was found in his cell by a guard and was pronounced dead by the prison's physician, Dr. Paul Soly, police said.

Troopers said Williams had fashioned an electrical device made from parts of two radio headsets, which he connected to himself and to the electric light socket and switch in his cell. His body was removed to St. Francis Hospital in Poughkeepsie for an autopsy.

Typhoid Cases On the Rise

HOMESTEAD, Fla. (UPI)—The number of cases continued to climb today in the typhoid fever epidemic among migrant farm labor families at the South Dade labor camp. Two cases were reported in neighboring Collier County for the first time.

Confirmed typhoid cases rose to 57, while the number of persons hospitalized with typhoid symptoms since late February rose to 133.

Health officials installed an emergency water supply and closed a child day care center Tuesday at the South Dade camp in hopes of stemming the outbreak.

Oath Vetoed

Kingston Youths Arrested Following High Speed Chase

TOWN OF LAGRANGE Taken into custody were Jay Steven Levine, 18, of 410 Pearl Street, and Steven Lloyd Aaron, 18, of Forest Hill Drive. Both youths were charged with criminal possession of a dangerous drug in the third degree, unlawful possession of a noxious material (a tear gas gun), and possession of a narcotic implement (a pipe).

Levine, the operator of the vehicle, was also charged with reckless driving and two counts of failure to comply with a lawful order.

Police said approximately 14 pounds of alleged marijuana was found in the vehicle.

Arraigned before Clinton Town Justice William Tompkins, the youths pleaded innocent and were confined in Dutchess County Jail in lieu of $2,500 bail each to await a reappearance at a later date.

Bail Reduced

In 'Plant' Case

TOWN OF ROSENDALE Joseph Monaco, 23, of Box 44A, Winchell Lane, Town of Rosendale, had a preliminary hearing on eight drug-related charges postponed and bail reduced when he appeared Monday night before Town of Kingston Justice Richard Albestadt.

Monaco was arrested by Ulster County Sheriff's Department personnel March 1 after a deputy on patrol spotted marijuana plants growing in a window box of Monaco's home, just off Creek Locks Road in the Town of Rosendale.

After a search of the premises Monaco was charged with third degree possession of a dangerous drug (more than one pound of marijuana), two counts of possession of a dangerous weapon (.22-caliber pistol and a switchblade knife), second degree possession of drug paraphernalia, sixth degree possession of a dangerous drug (LSD), possession of narcotic instruments (hash pipes), possession of hypodermic instruments, and with growing marijuana.

Albestadt ordered Monaco's original $6,000 bail on the eight counts reduced to $3,000. Monaco released when he posted bail and was ordered to reappear for a hearing on March 13.

Approval for Subdivision

TOWN OF SHAWANGUNK Two subdivisions were granted approval by the Town of Shawangunk Planning Board Tuesday night following public hearings at which no opposition was voiced.

Granted approval were the Hansberg Acres subdivision in Walker Valley and the Pequean subdivision, located between Bruynswick and Wallkill. The latter was granted approval subject to board of health approval.

April 3 was set as the date for a public hearing on the Garrison Subdivision, located on River Road. April 3 was also set as the tentative date for a public hearing on a 16-acre, three-lot subdivision being developed by Gerald Holland on Wallkill Avenue.

OCS Staff Study Presented

BOICEVILLE How well professionally trained, experienced, and alert to pupils needs are Ontario Schools teachers?

"Staff Characteristics, 1972-73," compiled by the Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Frank M. Marlow, presents a staff study indicating quality of teaching personnel.

Satisfactory classroom performance has secured permanent tenure for 65 per cent of the professional staff. More recent appointees will receive tenure when recommended for excellence in teaching, according to the study.

The Master's Degree, or its equivalent, is held by 69 per cent of the instructors granted by colleges and universities in 30 states of the United States; 43 per cent of the staff indicate their intention to continue graduate credit work.

Districtwide, half of Ontario's 204 staff have had 4 to 14 years of teaching experience. Recent college graduates appointed and those with longer teaching experience complete the group. Many instructors began their teaching in the Ontario Schools. Qualification for permanent New York State Certification has been met by 70 per cent of Ontario's staff. Provisional Certificates have been granted to 25 per cent of the staff who are now working toward permanent certification.

While men teachers outnumber women teachers in the junior-senior high school, the reverse is true in all four elementary schools. District teachers average 30 to 49 years of age. Appointment of recent college graduates, 20 to 30 years of age account for 33 per cent of staff; 11 per cent are 50 years and older.

Ontario teachers come from 22 states, as far west as California, and three from Germany; 148 are native New Yorkers, concluded the Superintendent's study report.

Parents Must File 'Outside' Request

SAUGERTIES Parents residing in the Saugerties Central School District desiring transportation for their child to attend a non-public school outside the district during the 1973-74 school year must file a written request with the Board of Education on or before April 1, according to announcement recently by Dr. Dexter O. Arnold, Superintendent of Schools.

Dr. Arnold noted that the procedure is required under Section 3635 of the State Education Law and is necessary to allow the school board to budget sufficient funds to cover the costs involved.

The requests for transportation should include the student's name, address, grade, the school he or she is presently attending and the school to be attended in 1973-74.

Requests should be addressed to the Supervisor of Transportation, Administration Building, Saugerties Central Schools.

Application forms are available from the Supervisor of Transportation, but a letter containing the necessary information will be accepted in lieu of the prepared forms.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market opened higher today in quiet trading as investors continued to look with optimism for a solution to the international monetary crisis.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up about 1 point and advancing issues on the New York Stock Exchange ran ahead of declining issues 136 to 54.

Analysts said the market would respond favorably to a joint float of currencies by the European Common Market nations and there have been indications that a joint float may be decided on this week.

Arrest Made

Robert Bemis, 32, of 97 Furnace Street, Kingston, was arrested by store personnel Monday night after he allegedly took goods worth a total of $4.13 from the Grand Union grocery in Kingston Plaza. Kingston police said Bemis was apprehended after he allegedly left the store with children's socks worth $2.34, shampoo valued at $1.29, and candles worth 50 cents. Bemis was scheduled to appear in City Court today to answer to the charge.

Federal Judge Says IBM Lawyers Violated Order

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge has rebuked the International Business Machines Corporation, saying its lawyers violated a court order by arranging for a competitor, Control Data Corporation, to destroy documents prepared for a lawsuit against IBM.

The two computer makers settled their suit—an antitrust action by Control Data against IBM—on Jan. 12.

But Chief Judge David N. Edelstein of U.S. District Court said the documents Control Data had prepared should have remained available for use in a separate Justice Department action against IBM.

Female Technician Vs. Lawmakers
...No Formal Complaint as Yet

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — A spokesman for the State Health Department said today it had received no formal complaint concerning an incident involving a female technician and four state legislators at the state-funded Cardiovascular Health Center operated by Albany Medical College.

The 20-year-old woman was reportedly handled roughly by the four, all believed to be Democratic assemblymen from New York City, according to a story in the Albany Times Union.

Dr. Joseph T. Doyle, head of the division of cardiovascular diseases at the college, confirmed that "an inexcusable" incident occurred at the center last week. He expressed fear that publicity could jeopardize the program, which receives its entire $100,000 annual budget from the Health Department.

"The department has received no formal complaints from anyone," the spokesman said. He also said the department had no intention of closing the program because of the incident.

"It occurred and it is unfortunate and we certainly hope it doesn't happen again," the spokesman said. He expressed hope that "the impact of the story will have the desired effect."

He called the incident "very unusual."

The Times Union story said the four legislators subjected the young technician to obscene gestures and remarks, placed her on a tread mill designed to test heart stress and turned it to full speed, and stuck an electrode down her uniform.

Dr. Robert P. Whalen, deputy state health commissioner, was quoted by the newspaper as saying he had talked with Doyle "two or three days ago and he informed me that some horseplay had gotten out of hand, but I really don't know any of the details."

Cocaine-Voodoo Sect Members Are Arrested

NEW YORK (AP) — Five members of a cocaine-snorting voodoo sect were arrested Tuesday night in a raid by narcotics detectives on an Upper Manhattan apartment that police said they used for rites.

Those arrested included Rosa Cortina, 62, of Manhattan, identified as the high priestess of the sect. All were charged with selling cocaine.

Police said undercover detectives made cocaine buys during a four-month investigation in the city, Westchester County and New Jersey.

Investigators traced the flow of the drug to an apartment at 220 Wadsworth Ave. in Washington Heights, where police said the sect of Cubans snuffed cocaine, butchered chickens and drank the birds' blood during rites.

Police seized 7 1/2 pounds of cocaine in the raid. Arrested were Miguel Losa, 36, Servio Reyes, 22, and Irma Rivera, 22, who all live in the apartment; the Cortina woman and Renaldo Balaria, 44, of Union City, N.J.

LONG TERM LEASING A SPECIALTY!

The cardiovascular center is located on the third floor of Albany Medical Center Hospital. According to the Times Union article, the young woman said most of the doctors had stepped out of the center when the four legislators arrived for checkups. The center is a project that was started in 1952 after heart attacks took the lives of several important members of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's cabinet and staff. At his request, the Health Department contracted with the college to study heart disease in middle-aged men. Because the center is state-funded, the center offers the free annual checkups to legislators and the governor's cabinet. Governor Rockefeller has taken the tests several times.

IBM lawyers argued that the destruction of the documents by thousands of company documents, otherwise known as a data base. The Justice Department has said such a system is needed for its case.

The base prepared by Control Data "was destroyed at the request of IBM, pursuant to an agreement" between the two firms, "and, therefore, IBM can be held responsible for its destruction," Edelstein ruled.

He ordered IBM to immediately produce any elements of their data base it has and "any other materials in its possession needed to reconstruct the base."

Edelstein did not order IBM to reconstruct the base. Nor did he grant a government request to order IBM to pay the Justice Department for "all costs" to reconstruct the base.

In its suit, the Justice Department is seeking to break up IBM into smaller, competing units in the general-purpose computer field.

Officials Tour Shriners Unit

SPRINGFIELD, MASS. — Through arrangements made by local Shrine Clubs, members of the Health Departments in Ulster, Dutchess, Greene and Columbia Counties recently toured the Springfield Unit of the Shriners' Hospitals for Crippled Children.

A complete tour of the 60-bed facility revealed equipment of interest to therapists, which is available to children both as in-patient and out-patient service.

At present there is an active case list at the unit of 1600 children, with 216 children on the waiting list for admission. Miss Muriel Westcott, R.N., the administrator at the unit, explained during the tour that the hospital is entirely supported through contributions and fund raising activities such as the annual Shrine Football game.

Children from infancy to 15 years of age whose parents or guardians are unable to pay for medical care are accepted by the hospital under the sponsorship of a Shriner.

The Springfield school system provides two teachers who conduct classes at the hospital so children can continue the learning process while confined. There are 22 Shriners' hospitals in North America, with the first having been established in Shreveport, La. in 1922.

Among those who took part in the recent tour were Larry V. Bogert, secretary of the Ulster County Shrine Club; John Schock physical therapist with the Ulster County Health Department; Charlotte Boardman, supervising nurse with the Greene County Health Department; John Lazarony, physical therapist with the Dutchess County Health Department; and Leonard Merte, president of the Dutchess County Shrine Club.

NAMED REPRESENTATIVE — Laurence Van Houten Bogert was elected Imperial Representative for Cyprus Shrine Temple, Albany, at the recent annual meeting. A Kingston resident since 1947, Bogert is affiliated with the Shatemuck Realty Company. He has been a Mason since 1927 and holds memberships in Kingston Lodge 10, Mt. Moriah Chapter 75, R.A.M., and the Rondout Commandery 52, Knights Templar. His Albany memberships include Sovereign Consistory and Cyprus Temple and he is secretary of the Ulster County Shrine Club.

Brush Shredder Available for Town of Olive

WEST SHOKAN

Town of Olive residents are asked to bring brush up to five inches in diameter to the town and fill site on Beaverkill Road instead of burning it.

Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday, Thursday, and Saturday, and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday. Brush will be shredded into mulch which residents may bag for use in gardens and orchards and for cattle bedding.

Mrs. Ruth Hill, chairman of the Olive Environmental Conservation Commission, said that there is no charge for shredding and the mulch is free for the taking.

Mrs. Hill thanked town, county and state officials for a coordinated effort to halt brush burning, which she called a serious air pollutant in the town.

Albert Fox, Olive fire chief, pointed out that at times when there is no snow cover and ground cover is brittle and dry, brush fires are hazardous. He urged town residents to cooperate in the shredding program.

"It not only cuts down serious fire damage but many farmers and fruit growers have learned that mulch is an excellent natural fertilizer and makes good bedding for cattle," he noted.

IOTA Workshop Set March 8 for Area Educators

Dutchess County BOCES and the Office of Educational Planning in New Paltz are co-sponsoring a one-day informational workshop March 8 to acquaint area educators with the Instrument for Observation of Teacher Activities (IOTA) program.

The IOTA program, which was developed at Arizona State University, has been used successfully to improve teaching activities and effectiveness of elementary and secondary teachers.

It is a self-development program which teachers use to improve their instructional program.

The workshop at the Camelot Inn, Poughkeepsie, from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., will consist of a presentation of the IOTA story by a team of consultants from Arizona State University.

Large and small discussion groups are planned so that detailed examination of the program will be explored.

Cost for attendance is $15, which includes lunch. Interested persons should contact either Lou Nanini at the Office of Educational Planning in New Paltz or Herbert Liberman, Dutchess County BOCES.

Lamaze Film To Be Shown At Rhinebeck

RHINEBECK

A film of interest to expectant parents and to the public in general is scheduled for showing at the Northern Dutchess Hospital Friday at 8 p.m.

The film, The Story of Eric, winner of the 1972 Cine Golden Eagle Award, deals with natural childbirth using the Lamaze method.

The 34-minute film closely follows one couple's childbirth experience and is geared to showing prospective parents the reality of labor dealt with in a positive way.

Admission is open to the public. A nominal fee will be charged, and refreshments served.

Napanoch Courses Underway

STONE RIDGE In an effort to provide meaningful training for prison inmates, Ulster County Community College is offering courses at the Eastern New York Correctional Facility at Napanoch.

Dean of Faculty Robert J. Markes said the college is able to provide their career drafting courses to assist with the vocational education of the inmates through the aid of a $4,566 Federal grant.

"We're pleased to be able to provide this needed training for the Napanoch inmates," said Dean Markes, "and hope it may become a model for courses to be offered at correctional facilities throughout the State."

Six inmates recently completed Technical Drawing I and presently are enrolled in Technical Drawing II. An additional six students are also enrolled in a course in Blueprint Reading. The instructor for these courses is James Hadley, an associate professor of engineering technologies.

One inmate reported he and the others are interested in taking the courses because they will provide them with a marketable skill upon release from Napanoch.

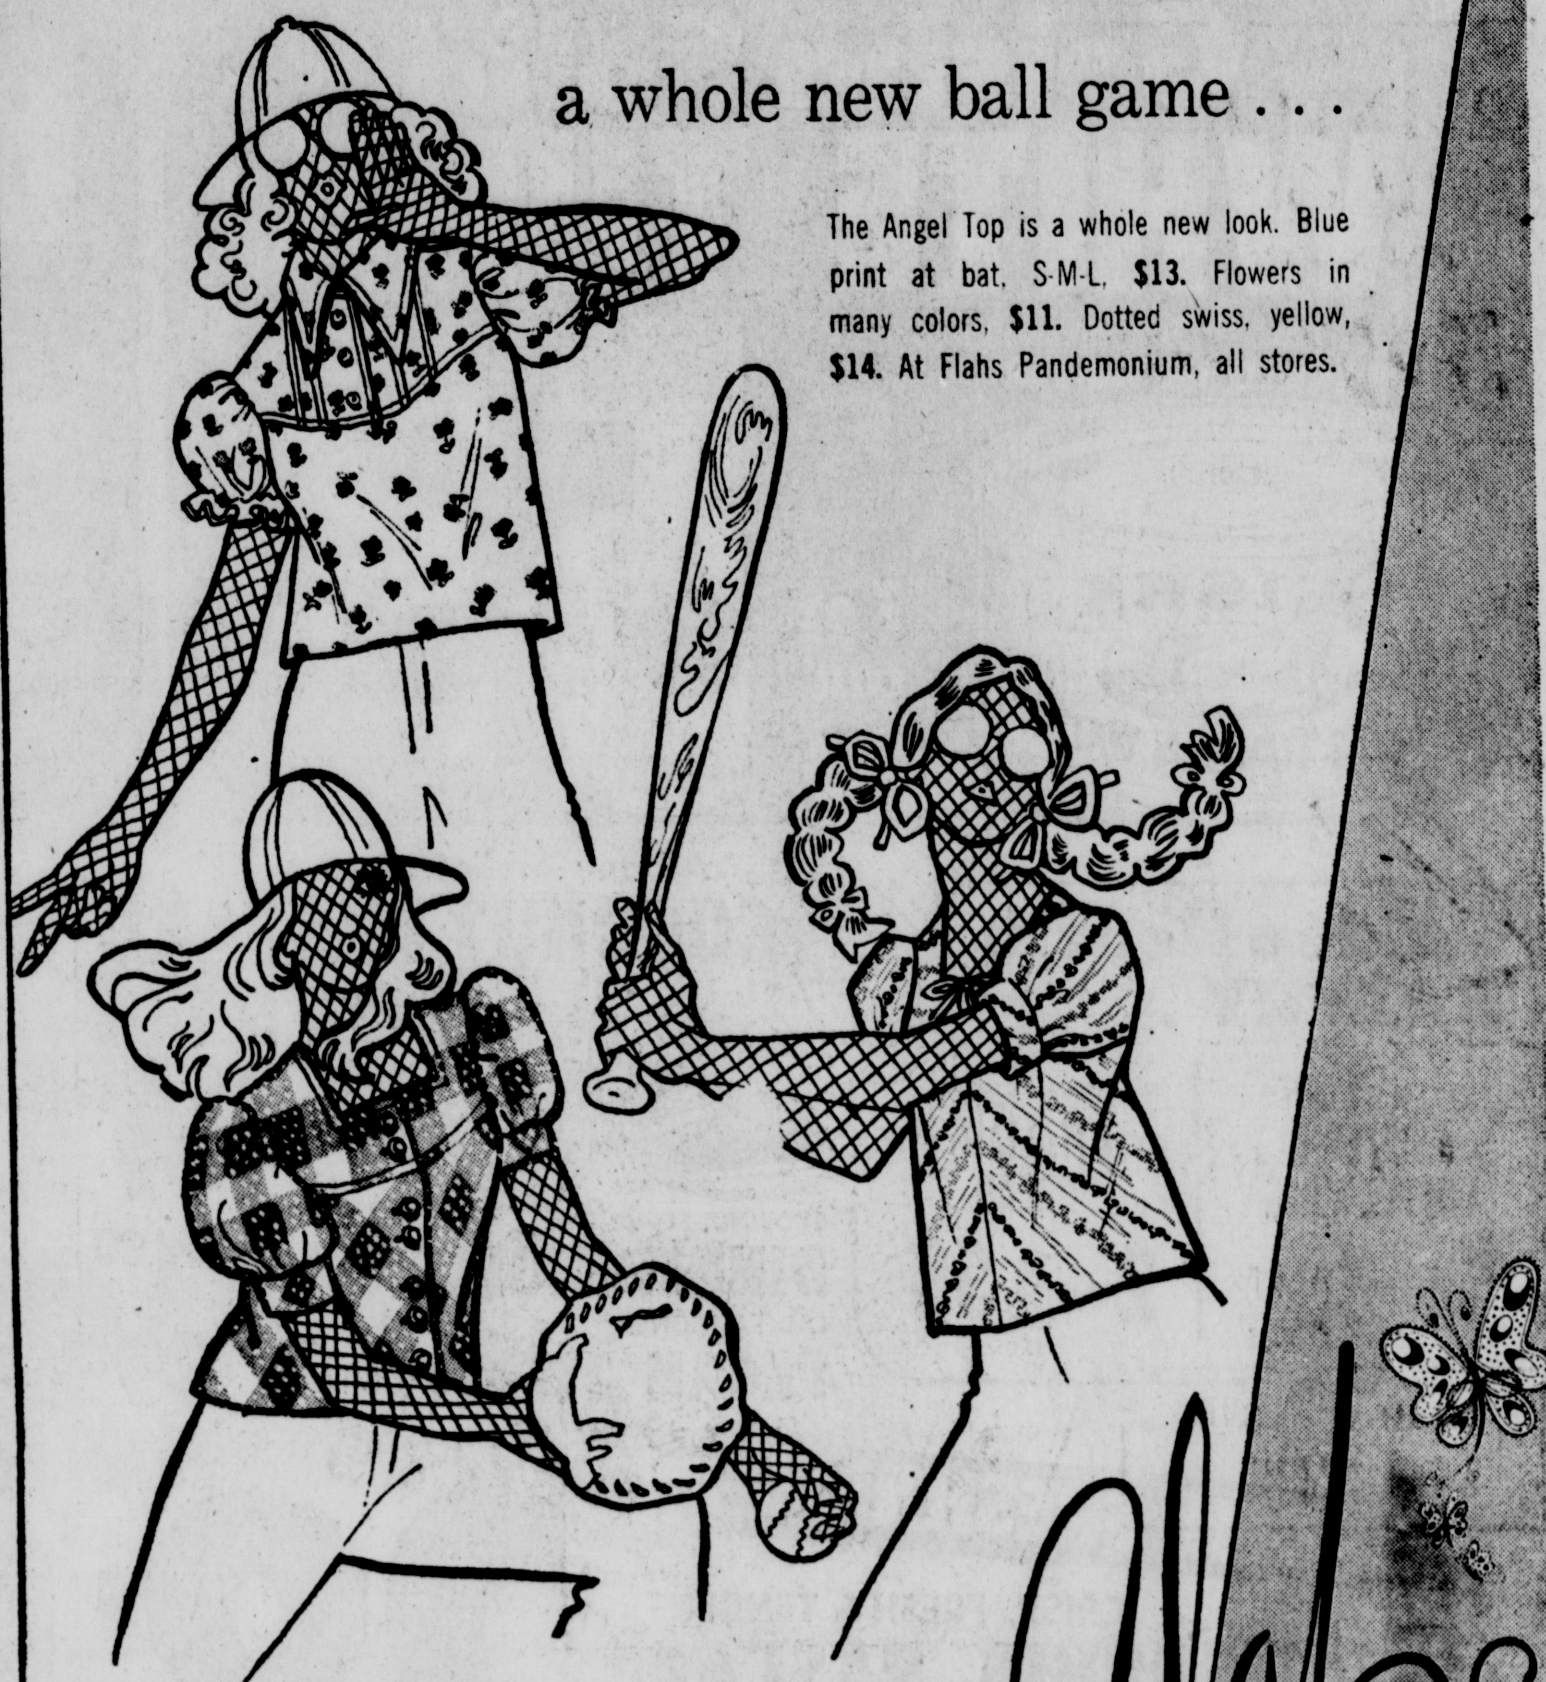

Hadley said one inmate who completed Technical Drawing I, has been released from the facility and has been able to obtain a job because of the training he received in the course.

The professor added that six other companies had indicated an interest in employing released inmates who have received training in the drafting courses.

The professor is using innovative methods in teaching this course, including the use of closed circuit television and experimenting with new approaches of motivation based upon the philosophy of humanistic education.

The need for these courses was determined through a survey of inmate needs prior to rehabilitation and entry into the job market.

Shultz a C-H Nominee

POUGHKEEPSIE Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation has announced that Dr. James R. Breed, a Poughkeepsie surgeon and Herbert L. Shultz, a Kingston businessman, have been nominated by the Board of Directors for election to the Board at the utilities annual meeting of shareholders April 3. The nominees would succeed Henry D. Sherwood, Pine Plains, and Fabian L. Russell, of Mt. Marion, who are not eligible for nomination because of an age limitation policy adopted by the Board some years ago.

Dr. Breed, who resides at 40 Adriance Avenue, Poughkeepsie, is a trustee of the Poughkeepsie Savings Bank, a counselor of the Children's Home, Poughkeepsie, and a director of the Poughkeepsie Area Chamber of Commerce. He has served as president of the Mid-Hudson Surgical Society and Vassar Brothers Hospital staff, and as director of the Surgical Departments of both Vassar Brothers Hospital and Northern Dutchess Hospital. He is a graduate of Colgate University and the New York University College of Medicine.

Shultz, who resides at 62 Lounsbery Place, Kingston, is president of Rodie Coal Company, Inc., Kingston, and president of Spin-Line Fishing Tackle, also in Kingston. He also is president of North River Coal Company, Inc. and president of Kingston Coal and Oil Co., Inc., both in Kingston. Shultz is a director, secretary and member of the executive committee of Mid-Hudson Pattern for Progress, Inc. He is a trustee of Rondout Savings Bank, Kingston, and chairman of the Kingston Human Rights Commission.

He is a director and member of the executive committee of Kingston Boy's Club, Inc., and a past president of that organization. He also serves on the executive committee of the Ulster chapter of NAACP, and on the advisory board of the Catskill Center for Conservation Development, Inc.

A graduate of Princeton University in 1940, Shultz has been active in various Princeton affairs; and after graduating from college, entered the newspaper profession, working as a political reporter for the Associated Press in Albany, covering the state legislature and the Governor's office. He later served overseas during World War 2 as a Marine Corps Combat Correspondent.

KINGSTON with prostatic disease. Evidence, at this time, relates the occurrence of bacterial chronic prostatitis and benign prostatic hypertrophy to a low dietary intake of zinc, and hence a low blood and tissue level of this element in these patients. The reason for this ubiquitously low intake of zinc in the average American diet is thought to involve the poor U.S. agricultural practices and the lack of recycling of elements from the soil back into the soil. It is felt that a borderline or an actual zinc deficient nutritional state in the average American diet may be the rule rather than the exception and that this may be a major factor, explaining the huge incidence of prostatic disease. It was pointed out that, since a combination of other factors appear to be at work in the development of prostatic disease, further research into these other avenues is currently being undertaken.

'Woman of Year' Award Goes to Trudy Sampson

Trudy Sampson of Rhinebeck, a member of the Northern Dutchess Business and Professional Women's Club for several years, has been chosen to be "Woman of the Year." She will be honored at a dinner Tuesday, March 20, in the Beekman Arms Hotel, Rhinebeck. Social hour is planned for 6:30 p.m. with dinner slated for 8 o'clock.

Born in Switzerland, Mrs. Sampson came to this country at an early age. Before moving to Rhinebeck in 1954, she was the owner of "Swiss Trudy's Alpine Village" in Nanuet and owned and operated Foster's Coach House in Rhinebeck for 12 years.

Mrs. Sampson has entertained all over the country. She brings her music and cheer to the patients at Hudson River State Hospital, Northern Dutchess Hospital, and plays for the senior citizens throughout the Hudson Valley, including Westchester County. Interested in mental health, she has been instrumental in raising money for many outstanding organizations and veterans hospitals.

She entertained for the USO and received a commendation from Bing Crosby for her work during World War II. In 1951, she received a citation of Meritorious Service from the American Legion. She belongs to the Eastern Star, Beekman Chapter, Rhinebeck, as well as the Swiss Benevolent Society in New York where she frequently entertains.

Mrs. Sampson is the mother of two sons, Howard Rust of Kingston, and Lt. Col. Carl Rust of Boulder, Colo., and a daughter, Gertrude Koser, who is teaching in New City. She and her husband, Leavitt Sampson, reside at 65 Montgomery Street in Rhinebeck. Mr. Sampson is a descendant of Daniel Boone.

Chairman of the dinner will be Mrs. Marie Scorza, past president of Northern Dutchess BPW. Reservations may be made with Mrs. Scorza of Rhinebeck. All friends and neighbors are invited.

A TOUCH OF GREEN — Mrs. Lawrence Quilty, chairman of the Benedictine Hospital Auxiliary Green Carnation Sale, pins a flower on Clifford Henze, president of the board of directors for the hospital, in anticipation of a St. Patrick's Day fund raising project slated for Friday, March 16. Fresh green carnations will be available at various locations in Kingston including the Benedictine Hospital. Many banks and businesses have indicated that carnations will be presented to their customers and employees. The sale, sponsored by the Auxiliary, has been a tradition over the past several years. Mrs. Quilty will be assisted with the project by Mrs. Anthony Vivicich, Mrs. Howard Buck and Mrs. Charles Gaffney as well as many Auxiliary members who will be distributing the carnations early Friday morning. All proceeds will be used to purchase equipment for the hospital. (Freeman photo by Haines)

Welcome Wagon Club Will Observe 10th Anniversary

Greater Kingston Welcome Wagon Club will meet Tuesday, March 13, at the Bonanza Branch of Heritage Savings Bank, Route 9-W, Kingston, at 8 p.m. March marks the 10th anniversary of the Kingston Branch of Welcome Wagon. It also marks the 10th year of service for Mrs. Charles Selzo, hostess advisor, through whose efforts the club was formed.

Since its formation in 1963, Welcome Wagon has grown in the score and breath of its activities and membership. Its goals include an active interest in civic and social services, the moral welfare of the community, promoting and encouraging good citizenship and neighborliness, and aiding the country and communities through the gift of time, energy and personal effort on behalf of worthy causes. The activities through which Welcome Wagon Club realizes these goals are many and varied.

On the personal level, newcomers to the Kingston area are visited by a Welcome Wagon hostess, from whom they receive maps of the area, helpful brochures, and pamphlets, gifts and cards of introduction from local merchants and service organizations. The newcomer is then invited by the hostess to become involved with his neighbors and the community by joining one of the many clubs and activities which are sponsored by Welcome Wagon, among them bridge clubs, arts and crafts, bowling, culinary happenings, "munchin' mates, the Sew 'n Sews, dances, holiday parties, picnics.

Newcomers and members alike have the opportunity to meet and listen to speakers of interest from the community, who are invited to the monthly meetings.

Welcome Wagon is responsible for the success of the Amblyopia Clinic where pre-school children are screened for eye difficulties. Volunteers work at the Cerebral Palsy Clinic, infirmaries, old age homes and hospitals, the Red Cross. The club has been able to send needy children to YMCA and YWCA camps in summertime. It also donates monies to local charitable organizations by raising funds through projects such as bake sales, card parties, fashion shows. The Club also sponsors a foster child in India.

To date, Welcome Wagon has, as a service, donated 1247 hours to its many projects. At the March 13 meeting, the special program will be a Chinese Auction and the celebration of the Club's Anniversary. Members and guests are invited to join the gala event.

Round, Square Dance
A round and square dance sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary of Lomontville Fire Department will be held Saturday at Lomontville firehouse from 9 to 1. Refreshments will be served.

Scholarship Funds Established

An increase in the scholarship offered by the Educational Secretaries of the Kingston Area and the establishment of a fund to be used for the aid of needy children in the Kingston School District were the main topics discussed at their regular meeting on Monday evening, Feb. 26.

In previous years the group has offered a $200 scholarship to a girl graduate of Kingston High School who intends to continue her education in the secretarial field. Only a few years ago this was increased from $100. At this recent meeting it was voted to increase the award to two scholarships, one for $200 and the other for $100. Since many of the group felt that funds raised should be used for purposes other than scholarships, it was decided that a fund would be set up which could be used to assist needy students in the Kingston School District. The social workers of the school system will be informed of the existence of this fund and the money will be spent upon their recommendation.

This increased participation in community service is the result of the success of the recent fund-raising drive conducted by the secretaries of the Kingston City Schools. The committee which organized the sale of candy in the city schools included Miss Jeannine Steuding, Miss Sandy Lisman, Mrs. Bonnie Landi, Mrs. Patricia Turco, Mrs. Joan Browne and Mrs. Dolores McGowan. The committee gives credit for the success of the drive to the rest of the secretarial staff in all the schools who sold the candy and the cooperation of the other school employees who purchased the candy.

The regular meeting of the Educational Secretaries was held at the George Washington School. Mrs. Angela Kearney, president of the association, presided. Regular reports were made by Mrs. Nancy Jansen recording secretary, Mrs. Bonnie Landi, treasurer and Mrs. Helen Webber, corresponding secretary. Reports were also made by Miss Jeannine Steuding, newsletter editor and fund raising chairman; Mrs. Margaret McCordle, publicity chairman; Miss Louise Prochaska, sick day bank chairman; and Mrs. Bonnie Landi, negotiations chairman. Mrs. Kearney appointed Mrs. Ruth Secor and Mrs. Beatrice Jordan as members of the nominating committee. Mrs. Betty Fischer, Mrs. Marsha Daniels and Mrs. Elaine Gille will be in charge of the May dinner meeting. Mrs. Constance Popp will provide the entertainment for the dinner meeting. Mrs. Margaret McCordle was named chairman of the scholarship committee. She will be assisted by Mrs. Jean Krueger and Mrs. Marilyn Riezo in the selection of candidates for the scholarships for the year 1973-74.

The Educational Secretaries of the Kingston Area represent the secretarial and clerical staff of the Kingston City Schools, Consolidated Teacher Aides and School Monitors may also be associate members of the organization. The association is recognized by the Kingston Board of Education as the bargaining agent in negotiations under the Taylor Law for the members of the association. ESKA is also affiliated with the New York State Association of Educational Secretaries.

Hints From Heloise

By HELOISE

A LITTLE NEIGHBORLY
SWAPPING!

Dear Heloise:

Being a newlywed, and anxious to try out all of my recipes, I found it hard to do so while staying within my budget. Then I came up with the fantastic idea of a "left-over swap!"

Now I'm sure you are wondering just what is a leftover swap.

Every other day, all the girls and one fellow in the apartment house meet at my place with yesterday's leftovers and we swap.

I'm telling you some of the best meals I've turned out have been made with someone else's leftovers.

And the funny thing is that none of our huddies suspect a thing.

MRS. BOB RINEHART

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise:

I enjoy your household hints very much. However, I have a very serious problem, and I wonder if you might be able to help me out.

I've just folded up my knitting. And put away my dreams.

I've lost most of my buttons and fallen apart at the seams.

Now this may not pose a problem for the gal who loves to sew.

But to this "scatter-brained redhead" it is a downright, low down blow.

If you have a simple answer, please let me know right away.

I'm not sure I'll hold together. Even for another day.

BEULAH KITZMILLER

Dear Heloise:

I planned on serving banana splits at my daughter's birthday party. My only problem was that I didn't have enough banana split dishes.

I took care of this by using those aluminum trays that frozen dinners come in.

I had dozens of them stored away and I simply cut off the big divided section of each tray and they made beautiful substitute banana split dishes.

MRS. LOIS HAMILTON

Dear Heloise:

Take one or two of those large plastic garbage bags, sort your clothes as to colored and white and put one washer load in each bag. Also measure out your soap powder and put in the bag with the clothes. Just dump it all in the washer.

When the clothes are done you turn the bag inside out, fold your clothes and carry them home in the same bag.

This way you don't have to carry a basket or a box of powder with you — makes life so much simpler.

Women's Center
Birthday Thursday

The Women's Center, Market Street, Poughkeepsie, is having a birthday party Thursday at 8 p.m.

Opened in February, 1972, the Center has been serving the Mid-Hudson community by providing such services as abortion referral, birth control information, marriage and divorce counseling, day care center, lending library, speakers' bureau, consciousness-raising, monthly newsletter publication.

March 8 proves to be an appropriate day for the celebration as it is International Women's Day. The origin of International Women's Day is from the labor disputes during the early part of the 20th Century. The women united to fight against the oppression which they felt as a class of people.

Jr. Flower Show
Exhibitors Alerted

Mrs. Brendan Dooley, general chairman of the Saugerties Society of Little Gardens 49th Annual Standard Flower Show, announces the Junior Division Horticulture schedule at this time, so that the junior gardeners may plan and prepare well in advance of the show, to be held on Wednesday, June 13, at the Saugerties Methodist Church.

According to the show schedule, each Junior Division Horticulture exhibit must have been grown or made by the exhibitor, and must be in the possession of the exhibitor for at least 45 days prior to the date of the Flower Show.

There will be two classes in the Horticulture section of the Junior Division, in keeping with the show's overall theme, "Our Heritage."

"Remember the Alamo" — A collection of three cacti and/or succulents grown in a low container not to exceed 15 inches in any direction or dimension; ages five to 10 years.

"The Appalachian Trail" — Any plant started by the exhibitor from bulb or seed; container not to exceed eight inches in diameter; ages 11-15 years.

For further details, junior exhibitors may call Mrs. Hugo Knauer, Junior Consultant, at Saugerties. Junior Division Artistic classes will be announced at a later date.

HVPS Will Present Pianist on March 19th

The Hudson Valley Philharmonic will present an Austrian program featuring Mieczyslaw Horszowski, pianist, at 8:30 p.m. on Monday, March 19, at Kingston Community Theatre. The program will also be presented Saturday, March 17 at Mt. St. Mary College in Newburgh, and Sunday, March 18, at Poughkeepsie High School.

Horszowski is an extraordinary artist who began his musical career as a wunderkind who astounded everyone when he was five by playing Bach's Inventions from memory. Three years later, after studying with one of Vienna's most renowned teachers, he made his sensational concert debut, embarking on a concert career which made his name a household word all over Europe and the United States.

The program will consist of Schubert's "Fieriabras" Overture; Mozart's Piano Concerto in D minor; and, Hydn's Symphony No. 96.

For ticket information contact the HVP Box Office, Poughkeepsie.

The Hudson Valley Philharmonic is a non-profit cultural organization which must rely on community support to bring the highest musical standards to the Hudson Valley. Without local support, merely to cover the cost of the concert series, the HVP would have to double the price of the concerts. The Philharmonic is able to keep concert prices down and to support the many youth and educational projects and programs by donations, endowment fund investments and fund raising events.

This week's drive, "Operation Telefund," entails contacting 6,000 people in Dutchess, Ulster and Orange counties in an effort to raise $30,000. The Hudson Valley Philharmonic, like all other orchestras, must rely upon the community it serves, for its strength is determined by this support.

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST
© 1973, Emily Post Institute, Inc.

I received a number of comments on a recent column involving a question of addressing mail to a couple when the wife chose to retain her maiden name. Since courtesy demands that one respect her wishes in this matter, I asked for solutions from "liberated" readers. The consensus was (among those who offered suggestions rather than simply criticizing my answer) that married couples who wished to use different names should be addressed "Ms. Jane Blank and Mr. John Blue" or "Ms. Blank and Mr. Blue." I would recommend the former since it is more informative.

Dear Mrs. Post:

I am upset over this incident. I retired recently from a firm where I dealt with the general public of a very small town. There was no announcement, farewell dinner, speeches or anything to explain to people why I left the position.

I was flooded with calls and inquiries asking why I quit, etc. I had to go into long explanations of why I decided to retire since I had that choice or to be transferred to another office too far away to commute. Imagine how tiresome that was to go over several times a day.

I was deeply hurt that my superior didn't bother to at least make a statement to the press. Then one of my co-workers said it was up to me to inform the public, and my family and friends should have given a farewell party or whatever!

Since no one had ever retired from this firm before, nobody knew what was correct. Am I being too sensitive, or was my boss at fault?

Mrs. J. Clinton

Dear Mrs. Clinton: Some companies make it their policy to give farewell dinners, gifts, citations, etc. to retiring employees — others, especially smaller companies, do not. Since no one had ever retired from your firm before, and there was no established policy, it is quite possible that your ex-boss simply did not think of it.

He should have thought of it, however, and some form of announcement and tribute to your years of service should have been made. It was not up to you to make the announcement yourself or to your family to give a party. It's too late for that now, but you should not be embarrassed or upset by people who question you. Simply say "I retired because I decided I had worked long enough and I want to enjoy some relaxation while I still have time!"

Election Planned

Sawyer Homemakers will meet Thursday, March 15, at the home of Mrs. Dennis McCann. Election of officers is on the agenda. Mrs. Milton Tsitsera will demonstrate how to make favors and decorations out of egg cartons.

The group held its anniversary supper meeting recently at the home of Mrs. Peter Somerville. A miscellaneous sale was conducted by Mrs. Dennis McCann.

Refreshment hostesses were Mrs. Daniel Murphy, Mrs. Werner Reissler, Mrs. Carl Mayer and Mrs. Jack Staudacher.

of YWCA on Thursday at 2 p.m. Her program is entitled "The Lost Art-Apple People."

Mrs. Coy achieves interesting art work in many mediums, recycling materials most people discard. Recently she was interviewed by a national women's magazine. An article is forthcoming.

In this age when persons are concerned with saving and recycling, as well as creativity, the program promises to be rewarding. Guests are welcome.

Plans are also being made for the annual dessert-card party which will be held April 26. Mrs. William Soper of Kingston is in charge of reservations.

TENDER LEAN PORK ROAST WITH SOUR CREAM GRAVY

Handy Frozen Roasts

Reach for a roast, is good advice when the cook is also chauffeur, seamstress, housekeeper and club-goer. Putting a frozen, boneless tender lean pork roast in the oven gives the cook a head start toward serving a nutritious and tasty meal. It's a money-saving meal too because with the boneless roast you can eat all you buy.

Each two pound Swift's Premium Tender Lean Pork Roast comes packaged in its own foil roasting pan so it goes straight from freezer to oven without thawing. When the roast is cooked it's ready to serve, seasoned and garnished with pineapple slices.

As with other roasts, it's a good idea to let the cooked roast stand about 15 minutes before slicing. This is time enough to cook a vegetable, unmold the previously-made salads and make a sour cream gravy to pour over the meat slices or to serve with potatoes.

Paltz Dress Revue Scheduled Saturday

Mrs. James Merck has been named chairman of the New Paltz Area 4-H Dress Revue to be held Saturday, March 10 in the New Paltz High School. Judging will begin at 1 p.m. with the Dress Revue at 4 p.m. in the school auditorium.

Pork Roast, Sour Cream Gravy

Yield: Three-fourths cup gravy

Two pound frozen, boneless Pork Roast

Two tablespoons chopped onion

One-half cup dairy sour cream

One tablespoon flour

One-fourth teaspoon thyme

One-eighth teaspoon ground pepper

One-half cup hot chicken bouillon

Place frozen pork roast in its own foil pan in 400 degrees F. oven. Roast about two hours or until meat thermometer registers 170 degrees F. Remove roast from pan. Let rest about 15 minutes to make slicing easier. Meanwhile prepare gravy. Cook onion in pork drippings until tender. In a small bowl combine sour cream, flour and seasonings. Add chicken bouillon to onions in pan. Remove from heat. Stir in sour cream mixture and blend well. Place over low heat and cook, stirring constantly until gravy thickens. Serve with pork roast.

DEAR ABBY: While watching the news on TV tonight, a prominent news commentator, in reporting a crime, said: "The suspect is believed to have been a former mental patient."

I agree, if one has committed a crime, and has been a former mental patient, this fact should not be withheld. But until all the facts are in, such a statement serves only to equate former mental patients with crime, which I think is unfair.

I am not, nor have I ever been a criminal. But I am... A FORMER MENTAL PATIENT

DEAR FORMER: I agree with you and appreciate your writing. This is a plea to all reporters and news commentators to refrain from mentioning that a suspect is "believed to have been a mental patient."

There are many, many recovered mental patients who are already handling more than their share of prejudice. Let's give them a break.

DEAR ABBY: Years ago I met and casually dated (twice) a highly intelligent and interesting young man. We seemed to hit it off very well. Then one day he phoned (I'm sure to ask me for another date) and my father answered the phone. I was in the next room and heard him say: "She isn't home, and I don't know when she'll be back." Then he hung up abruptly. He knew I was home, Abby. When I asked my father who had called, he told me, and added: "I told him you weren't home because he is not for you!"

I had no way of calling him back because he was only visiting in the city at the time.

There was no logical basis for my father's attitude.

I am in my thirties and still single. I learned that this man is unmarried and is now living in this city. I would like to meet him again, but don't know how to go about it. Any suggestions, please?

YOUR FAN

DEAR FAN: Find a mutual friend and try to arrange a get-together with other people. If the attraction is still there, you'll both know it. If not, nothing ventured, nothing gained.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 22-year-old junior in college. About four months ago I left home (against my parents' wishes) and moved into an apartment. You would think a 22-year-old girl would be mature enough to take care of herself, but I led a very sheltered life.

Anyway, I met a young man while shopping downtown, and he suggested coming over to my apartment to talk and I agreed, thinking he was an "okay" person.

Well, it turned out he wasn't, and now I am nearly two months pregnant. My mind is all in a turmoil. I think I want an abortion. I spoke to my pastor about it, and he said I should be practical and make a decision I can live with. There is no way I can have this baby. Abby, I know there are hospitals that perform abortions, but I don't know which one they are or how to contact them. Would my parents have to know? How expensive would it be? Please help me.

Saugerties Area News

VERNON 'JOE' BENJAMIN

Independents Name Benjamin

SAUGERTIES For as long as most people can remember, the Village Party in Saugerties has run uncontested in the semi-annual elections for mayor and trustees. But not this year.

The newly-formed Independent Taxpayers Party has designated a slate of candidates, and filed the necessary petitions, for the March 20 elections. And if the early days of the campaign are any indication, they don't intend to offer just token opposition.

This year, three trustees and the village mayor are up for reelection. All the Village Party incumbents — Mayor Cornelius M. Cox and trustees Walter L. Keefe, Maurice L. Clements and Gregory A. Mulstay — have indicated that they will seek reelection.

In turn, the Independent Taxpayers Party has nominated Vernon (Joe) Benjamin as its candidate for mayor, and Erika Hinchey, Anthony Hackett and Robert F. Gardner as candidates for the three village trustee openings.

Independent Taxpayers Party chairman Edward Sweeney Sr. has listed four main issues that comprise the party's platform this year:

- A reduction of taxes which, according to Sweeney, "can be accomplished with coordinated planning, total utilization of present village equipment and assets, and elimination of any unnecessary expenditures."
- Broaden the scope of activities for the "young people" in Saugerties.
- Initiate a "serious effort to improve our village environment and to halt any further pollution problems," and,
- Establish a closer working relationship between village and town governments.

The candidates pledge that, if elected, they will "protect the interest of, and inform the village residents about, all issues and activities which occur within the village government structure." They also promised to "expose and remove from office, through proper parliamentary procedure, all village officials who do not have the best interests of the residents of the village in mind."

Heading the ticket as candidate for mayor is Benjamin, a life-long resident of the village. He was selected as the first Outstanding Citizen of Saugerties in 1969.

'Poor Judgment' Charged

SAUGERTIES alone on this (the village) project far exceeds any charges indicated by Woodstock," said Benjamin.

The candidate for mayor also noted that there were four fire alarms to the village dump last year, and on one occasion a fireman was seriously injured. He suggested that those incidents could have been avoided had the village board negotiated with Woodstock for the joint operation of a landfill site.

"Is this farsightedness, is this progressiveness, on the part of Mayor Cox and the Village Board," Benjamin concluded.

Benjamin said that, as a result, the village was forced to open its own landfill site at an initial cost to the taxpayers in excess of $30,000.

If the village board had negotiated with Woodstock, said Benjamin, the cost for landfill operations would have totaled approximately $3,428 per year. That cost, said Benjamin, would have meant a per capita rate of 80 cents based on the 1960 census, and even less based on the 1970 census.

According to Benjamin, Woodstock paid approximately $1,200 for the first two months' operation of its landfill site; a cost, said Benjamin, that is significantly lower than what the village paid for its landfill operation during its first two months. "I believe that labor ties by the Saugerties Jaycees in 1959 and served as president of the Saugerties Little League for four terms.

Benjamin served for a brief period as Police Commissioner for the village board, and was a member of the Village Police Department, the Town Police Department, the Ulster County Sheriff's Department and the New York Central Railroad Police. He is a past chief of the Saugerties Fire Department and a life member of the Exempt Fire Department.

Benjamin is a member of the Saugerties Athletic Association, Ridge Runners Fish and Game Club, High Woods Sportsman's Club, Saugerties Power Boat Association, Sawyerkill Golf Club and the Saugerties Methodist Church.

Erika Hinchey, candidate for trustee, has been a resident of Saugerties since 1945. Her husband, Maurice D. Hinchey Jr., is a Democratic State Committeeman.

Mrs. Hinchey, a graduate of the Saugerties Central School system and Wilfred's Academy in New York City, is a member of the Cahill School PTA, the League of Women Voters of Saugerties and the Saugerties Environmental Conservation Commission.

Mrs. Hinchey also served on the Saugerties Narcotics Guidance Council and has been an active canvasser for both the Heart Fund and the American Cancer Society.

Hackett is a life-long resident of the village and is employed at the Catskill plant of Alpha Cement Co. He graduated from Saugerties High School in 1956 and has been active in the Cub Scouts, Saugerties Fish and Game Club and the Saugerties Fire Department. He is a member of the Village Planning Board.

Gardner has resided in Saugerties since 1955 and has been a member of the Lamouree-Hackett American Legion Post for the past 18 years. He is a member of the Saugerties Fire Department, the Cement Sportsman's Association and Local 2328 of the Carpenter's Union. He graduated from Catskill High School and served with the U.S. Army in Korea from 1951 to 1953.

The Independent Taxpayers Party filed 12 petitions containing 170 signatures with the village clerk on Feb. 29.

Sims Opens Reapport Battle

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON Alderman Titus B. Sims (R-13th Ward) may have fired the opening gun for the Republicans in what is expected to be a bitter battle over reapportionment in Kingston this year.

Sims came out in favor of retaining the present 13-ward aldermanic system in the city and in opposition to proposals to reduce the number to 11. Alderman Donald E. Wuick (D-Sixth Ward) is in favor of an 11 ward setup. And, Quick is chairman of the Common Council's Reapportionment Committee.

viewpoint of what is in the best interest of the city of Kingston and not what is best politically," Sims said.

Quick took exception to what he termed Sims' implication that his committee would draw the lines to the advantage of the majority party. Sims apologized for that, stating that he did not intend to demean Quick or his committee.

Quick also said that it would be "physically impossible" to maintain the boundaries in that four of the 13 wards were underpopulated.

Sims, in elaborating on his point, said, "I am sure each of us remember Mayor Koenig's adamant disagreement with the 1970 census. I, along with several of you assisted the mayor in making another unofficial census which showed many persons were not counted by the census takers. These additional persons, along with the increase in population we are getting, . . . will definitely equal and perhaps exceed the pre-1970 population figures."

In conclusion, Sims declared, "I can state publicly and without reservation that I can present a plan to this honorable body which will adhere to (the above) guidelines (13 wards, with as few changes as possible in order to adhere to the 1970 census) and I am sure the Reapportionment Committee can do the same."

Quick said that his committee would be meeting Thursday night for the first time to review the official figures.

Paltz Zoning Change Looms

By WADE BURKHART

NEW PALTZ A request for a zoning change to allow a large commercial development west of the New York State Thruway in New Paltz will be put before the New Paltz Town Board at its meeting next Wednesday.

The request will be put before the board by Kathleen Scott, acting as realtor for Tri-State Realty, Inc., the developers, according to Mrs. Scott.

The change requested will be the rezoning of something over 20 acres of land now zoned industrial to a business classification. The land is located off Route 299, and is bounded on the east by South Ohioville Road, on the north by Route 299 and Paradise Lane, and on the west by the Thruway interchange. The southern portion of the tract abuts on land owned by Abram W. Paradise, who presently owns the tract for which the zoning change will be requested.

The total area of the tract proposed for development is 27 acres, part of which is already zoned B2, or business.

It is proposed that the tract be divided into a 17-acre shopping center, a five-acre motel area, and an area of five acres for an office building.

A preliminary drawing was shown to the planning board Monday night, but no action was taken. Dr. David Mesches, vice chairman of the planning board, said Tuesday that the board could take no action regarding a zoning change, and Mrs. Scott was directed to bring a zoning change request before the town board.

Once the town board receives the request, it will be sent back to the planning board for a recommendation.

Mrs. Scott said Tuesday that she knew the planning board could not act on the plan before she brought it to them, but she had brought it to the planning board as a matter of information.

The shopping center would be considerably larger than the Simmons Plaza in New Paltz. Mrs. Scott said the anchor stores of the center would be a 53,000 square foot department store, and a 33,000 square foot supermarket. The center would have an enclosed mall, and several other businesses in addition to the two anchor stores.

The motel would be built in two stages of 100 units each. It has been rumored that the motel would be a Holiday Inn, but Mrs. Scott said it would not. The office building would be two and one-half stories. The plan she showed the planning board had a four story office building, but she said this was an architect's error.

She pointed out that part of the site is business zoned already, and said rezoning the rest of the site would not be "spot zoning," but would be extending the business zone "to encompass the site."

Mrs. Scott said she would also apply for a water and sewer district for the site, to be paid for by the developer.

She also said the lines, if they are laid, will not go across any taxpayer's land, and that people would join the district if they wanted to, but they would not be required to do so.

The sewer district does pose some problems which will have to be resolved. The site is outside the limits of the area set by engineering studies as the area the present New Paltz sewer plant is designed to serve, and the lines will have to be gotten across the Thruway.

FULL TIME FIRST AID—The Olive First Aid Unit Squad is now available around the clock. Full time service went into affect on March 1 after more than a year of intensive training and organization and donations and volunteer workers to staff the service from townspeople in

Family Tragedy...Neighbors Aid

ROSENDALE Stanley R. Galewaler and one of his sons were trimming trees in the Wilbur Avenue section of Kingston on Feb. 25, when suddenly a tree limb fell and struck him on the head.

Two days later he died in the hospital as the result of the injury, leaving a wife, Mary, and 12 children.

Now friends and neighbors of the Galewalers, who live on Lawrenceville Road in Rosendale, are getting together to solicit funds for the family.

A food sale will be held Saturday, March 10, at the new Rosendale Fire Hall on Main Street, with all proceeds to go to the family. Donations of food and cash will be most welcome, the organizers said. The sale will begin at 10 a.m. and end at 2 p.m.

Arrangements are also being made to have donations accepted at many Rosendale stores, according to neighbors.

"A lot of people have indicated they want to do something for the family, but you can't just go up to the door and hand them five dollars," one neighbor said by way of explaining why the solicitation is being organized. "Twelve children are an awful lot of mouths to feed these days," the neighbor added. The children are mostly of school age, with the eldest being 21. The youngest child is only two.

Gas Leak Contaminating Water Supply

HYDE PARK, N.Y. (AP) — A leak from an underground gasoline storage may leave the hamlet of East Park near here on a series of wells as its water supply. The gasoline is seeping into Crum Elbow Creek, the normal water supply, a water official said Tuesday.

Malcolm Kinney, superintendent of the hamlet's water department, said the leak occurred more than a week ago, but that the gasoline did not penetrate the soil to the creek until Monday.

As many as 7,000 gallons of gasoline were believed involved in the leak from a service station tank. Kinney said it could be three or four more weeks before all the gas is out of the soil around the creek.

Chemicals were dumped into the stream to reduce the danger of fire.

UCCC - Newbury Showdown at Dutchess

By IRA FUSFELD

KINGSTON

If you listen to Broome Tech basketball coach Dick Baldwin, Ulster County Community College won't have any trouble getting past Newbury, Mass., Junior College in tonight's inter-regional game.

"I can't picture Ulster getting beat by them," said Baldwin, whose Hornets lost to Newbury Monday in the Region III final and were beaten earlier in the season by the Senators.

The contest begins at 8 p.m. It will be played at Dutchess County Community College in Poughkeepsie, the site finally being determined following several hours of phone calls and a coin toss on Monday.

The game had originally been set for the 87th St. Gym on the RPI campus in Troy. Officials of the school then decided that a game there would affect the college's intramural program, so a switch to Hudson Valley Community College was made. Only Ulster coach Mike Perry vetoed that site, suggesting Dutchess as an alternative. The coin toss settled the issue.

Baldwin, one of the most successful coaches in junior college basketball history, bases his claims on the Newbury-Ulster confrontation on several things:

"Ulster plays better man to man defense than they do and they shoot better. Newbury doesn't have the depth and they get into foul trouble easier."

Baldwin says the officiating could be pivotal.

"Newbury plays pro style ball. They hold and body check when you try to get through. If the officials don't call it too loose, they'll be in trouble."

In Newbury's win over Broome, the Hornets had far more free throw attempts than did the Boston team. Even so, Baldwin felt many fouls were left uncalled.

"The reason they beat us (and it was only by one point)," said Baldwin, "is that we didn't play good defense, and they believed in miracles."

The Newbury miracle was a buzzer basket by Brad Winbush. Perry appreciates Baldwin's backing, but he's remaining cautious.

"The key to beating that team is breaking their press. And the key to breaking their press is Jackie Knowles. Once he penetrates, he'll be tough."

Perry pointed out that Broome's Greg Baldwin managed 22 points for Broome by penetrating on Newbury. Knowles is generally considered to be more adept at that phase of the game.

"I was impressed by their zone offense," Perry continued. "We'll go man to man on them."

Newbury has only one sizeable forward, 6-6 Dan Jones, and Perry his hoping 6-5 Coleman Link and 6-5 Steve Richardson of the Senators will be effective inside on the New England center.

Although Baldwin claims that "Ulster got a break" when Newbury beat Broome, Perry feels that the Senators would have matched up better against the Hornets.

Newbury coach Buddy Mahar, quartered at a motel near Albany, could not be reached for comment Monday. The cold facts on his team are that it carries a 27-5 record and it has never been beaten this season by a junior college club. Each of its defeats were at the hands of major college freshmen teams such as Providence, Boston College, and Harvard.

At stake, of course, is one of the 16 berths in the National tournament which begins Tuesday in Hutchinson, Kansas. Nineteen regional winners have been crowned, but three must be eliminated for the Kansas field. Thus, this year Region III meets Region XV; Region V plays Region XIV; and Region XI faces Region XIII to do the deed.

The Senators are in good shape physically for the game. Link reportedly had an injured foot going into Saturday's Region XV final against Farmingdale, but the big guy didn't look like a man who was in pain, as he scored 31 points and went on to win the tournament's most valuable player trophy.

The length of the Ulster season has put Coleman within range of the 1000 point mark for his two-year career. He has now thrown in 987 points, and needs just 13 this evening to join Jerry Moss, Glenn Berry, and Henry Nixon in the charmed circle.

Nixon passed the 1000 mark only last week.

Also due to the length of its schedule, the current Ulster team has become the first in school history ever to win 30 games in one season. The Senators are 30-4.

And if UCCC can up that total to 31, the bags will be packed, the plane will be boarded, and the Senators will be winging their way to Hutchinson, Kansas, sometime Sunday morning.

Parking Lot Rules for Fans

POUGHKEEPSIE

Fans attending tonight's Newbury-Ulster inter-regional playoff game at Dutchess County Community College are requested to use Parking Lot "D" at the North entrance to the school from Route 9G off Cottage Road.

THE KEY MAN — If Newbury (Mass.) persists with its zone press against UCCC at Dutchess tonight, the key man in breaking it up will be No. 14, Jackie Knowles, shown in action against Rockland in the Region XV tournament. END OF A LONG DAY — Yankee pitcher Mike Kekich (R) walks past first baseman Felipe Alou after workout at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., camp Tuesday. He remained silent concerning swapping wives with teammate Fritz Peterson. (UPI)

As Susan Saw It...

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI)

For Mike and Susan and Fritz and Marilyn there were laughs, tears, happy times, sad times, highs and lows. Ultimately, though, there was happiness for only one couple.

That was the picture painted by Mrs. Susan Kekich as she explained Tuesday how New York Yankee pitchers Fritz Peterson and Mike Kekich came to agree on the marital swap they announced Monday.

Mrs. Kekich, who is now living with Fritz said, "We went through an unbelievable strain. There were all kinds of highs and lows. I have never been happier in my life or sadder at the same time. We must have gone through every kind of emotion a human being can experience."

Mrs. Kekich said she wasn't worried about what people might think. "It's my life and you have to do what makes you happy. There's nothing smutty about this and anybody who thinks it's smutty has to be smutty-minded themselves. Don't make this out to be dirty and ugly. We are not involved in any lechery. We just fell in love."

But she added that if it happened to somebody else, "I'd be dying of curiosity to hear the details. But we have nothing to hide and we haven't been secretive."

Unfortunately, the swap which took place Dec. 14 although the couples first tried it last summer—didn't work out as well for Mike and Marilyn as it did for Fritz and Susan.

Mrs. Kekich said, "I wish they could have a life together. That would make everything complete."

Neither Mike Kekich nor Mrs. Marilyn Peterson, who apparently was planning to fly to Rockford, Ill., to visit her parents, would make any public comments.

In Rockford, Marilyn's mother, Mrs. Arthur Monks, said, "Please don't pry. This whole thing has been blown out of proportion. It's no one's business but my daughter's and those concerned."

Mrs. Monks also said, "as far as my daughter is concerned, there is no swap. She has applied for a divorce but does not plan to live with Mike Kekich. She is getting a divorce only because Fritz wants one."

The two Kekich children, Kristen, 5, and Reagan, 2, are living with Mrs. Kekich and Peterson while the two Peterson children, Gregg, 5, and Eric, 2, are with Mrs. Peterson.

KINGSTON

While Ulster and Newbury battle it out tonight for the right to go to the Nationals in Kansas, Manhattan Community College basketball coach Howie Jones is wondering if the whole thing is worth the effort.

"I don't know if I'd go out to the Nationals if I won the Regional tournament," Jones said the other day during a break in the Region XV action at the Senate Gym. "If I could stay on the Eastern seaboard and felt it was to our advantage then I would stay."

What might be to Jones' advantage on the Eastern seaboard is another tournament. A junior college NIT of sorts. And that's what Jones is investigating as chairman of a committee formed by Region coaches last week.

"You lose money going to the Nationals," Jones claimed, "in the sense that if you're not a winner you do. If you move up in the bracket, you might break even or come out with a slight profit."

"As it stands now, let's think about the teams that have gone out from the Eastern seaboard. In the last four or five years, no one has really done anything. It costs close to $4,700 just to send a team out there... cheering squad, room and board, and things like that, so you're losing money."

Jones thinks the junior college "NIT" would be the answer.

"We would consider the National playoffs as the 'NCCA'. The winner of the Regional playoff would normally, if they wanted to, go out to the National tournament in Kansas."

"But in lieu of that," he continued, "we're trying to consider something else. We're trying to say that we want to give our kids more exposure. Why should just the National games being held out in Kansas be the only place that our kids can get exposure?"

"So we would have something one step beyond our region. We're trying to involve three other regions: Region XIX, Region III, and there may be another Region, No. XX, coming in. So we're thinking of two teams from each region... remember, we're still in the embryonic stage... two teams from each region in the tournament. That doesn't necessarily mean the Regional champ, because they still have that choice if they'd like to go to the Nationals."

Jones says that with places like Broome Tech seating around 10,000 fans in the near future, and expanded arenas planned for Orange, Rockland, and Farmingdale, the Eastern players would get that added exposure the coaches would like.

The personable Manhattan coach, generally regarded as one of the most knowledgeable basketball men in New York, is quick to point out that the possible junior college "NIT" would not represent a break with the National Junior College Athletic Association.

"We're not thinking of breaking away from the National affiliation. We're just saying that those who do not want to go out to the National playoffs, meaning the winners of the Region along the Eastern seaboard, are going to have our own 'NIT.'"

California junior colleges, says Jones, already have such a set-up.

Potsdam, Marist Brockport Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Potsdam State, Brockport State and Marist all came up with post-season college basketball victories Tuesday night, with Potsdam and Brockport involved in see-saw affairs while Marist was the winner in an overtime battle.

Five-foot-seven freshman Tom Eggleston tossed in 10 second half points, eight of those in the last minute of play, to give Potsdam a come-from-behind 54-52 win over Rensselaer

The local investigation will continue.

TOURNEY TALK — Manhattan's quick exit from the Region XV tournament again encouraged the asking of the $64 question: How did Manhattan beat Ulster?

"Ulster had played three ball games in four nights," Jones offered. "They had us by nine or 12 at the half and they became sort of complacent. Also, I had three kids, two starters, on that team who did not make it to the regionals because of ineligibility."

"We weren't a better ball club," Jones smiled. "It was just one of those nights."

Potsdam Polytechnic Institute while Ron Gilliam's 26 points led Brockport over Jersey City 78-68 in opening round games of the NCAA college division Eastern Regional tournament.

Mike Hart scored six of his 24 points in the overtime period to lead Marist to a 55-49 victory over Dowling and the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics District 31 champion.

The Potsdam-RPI contest saw the lead change hands a dozen times in the second half before Eggleston's heroics put Potsdam in front for good. Mike Deane led the winners with 16 points, 10 assists and nine rebounds. RPI's Carle Dassatti notched 14 points.

Brockport got by Jersey City on the strength of a 10-point rally midway in the second half that gave the winners a lead they never lost. Jim Celentano led Jersey City with 16 points.

Marist's victory was its first over Dowling in three meetings this year. Gerry Lee topped the losers with 14 points.

Knicks, Celtics Call on Benches

by THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Boston Celtics and New York Knicks turned to their respective benches for help Tuesday night but the Milwaukee Bucks, as usual, left it to their big guy and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar proved too high a mountain for the Chicago Bulls.

With the 7-foot-2 Abdul-Jabbar scoring 21 of his 31 points in the second half, the Bucks fought off a Chicago comeback for a key 96-88 victory and opened a four-game lead—three in the loss column—over the Bulls in the Midwest Division, the National Basketball Association's closest race.

Meanwhile, subs Art "Ham-bone" Williams and Henry Finckel helped the Celtics to a 127-112 triumph over Buffalo while ageless Dick Barnett and young John Gianelli gave the Knicks a lift toward their 106-94 win over Seattle.

Elsewhere, Los Angeles defeated Portland 114-102, Golden State trimmed Detroit 108-93 and Phoenix downed Cleveland 110-102.

In the American Basketball Association, Carolina swamped San Diego 130-99, Kentucky trounced Memphis 131-107 and Virginia turned back Dallas 121-105.

Milwaukee squandered a 15-point first-half lead against Chicago and fell behind by five in the third period before Abdul-Jabbar took charge. With the Bucks leading by only two points, he canned a rebound with just under two minutes left and, after Chicago's Bobby Love got a basket on a goal-tending call—against Abdul-Jabbar, the big fellow converted a three-point play to make it 93-88 with one minute to go.

Milwaukee's Larry Costello said the turning point "was our running game. We had about 30 fast-break baskets, which is good for us, and if we can keep doing that we'll be in good shape."

Boston's Williams and Dave Cowens led a fourth-quarter drive that carried the Celtics past Buffalo and kept them six games ahead of New York in the Atlantic Division. It was Boston's 12th consecutive victory over the Braves in three seasons.

Bill Bradley, held to two points in each of his last two games, led New York to a 22-6 lead in the opening 7½ minutes against Seattle as the Knicks snapped their only three-game losing streak of the season.

Gail Goodrich's 30 points and Wilt Chamberlain's 22 points, 24 rebounds and seven blocked shots led the Los Angeles Lakers to their 16th straight triumph over Portland.

Rick Barry, held to three points in the first three periods, scored 12 in the final period to lead Golden State over Detroit.

Charlie Scott, Dick Van Arsdale and Neal Walk paced a second-half spurt that carried Phoenix past Cleveland.

In the ABA, Mack Calvin scored 16 of his 23 points in the third period to lead Carolina over San Diego and Dan Issel and Artis Gilmore scored 25 and 22 points in Kentucky's rout of Memphis. The dual losses prevented the Conquistadors and Tams from gaining ground in their runs at playoff berths.

Julius Erving scored 29 points and Virginia raced to a 28-4 lead in swamping Dallas.

Three Berths Open in NIT

NEW YORK (AP) — Only three berths remain uncommitted in the nation's two post-season college basketball extravaganzas, and even those are pretty much spoken for.

All spots in the NCAA Championships have been doled out to conference champions or at-large teams, or are reserved—either for the champions of conferences whose races have yet to be decided, such as the Big Ten or Southeastern, or for the winner of the Atlantic Coast Conference's playoff tournament this weekend.

And the National Invitational Tournament has already received acceptances from 13 schools—Notre Dame, American U., Virginia Tech, Fairleigh, Rutgers, Manhattan, Missouri, Oral Roberts, Louisville, Massachusetts, Southern Cal, New Mexico and Marshall—for its 16-team field.

Who'll get the three open NIT berths?

"We are watching the Big Ten, the ACC and the SEC races," declared Peter A. Carlesimo, chairman of the NIT selections committee. "If any of our choices from those areas don't accept, then we'll look into the independents situation again."

The Big Ten race is tied between third-ranked Minnesota and ninth-ranked Indiana. Each has one game remaining Saturday; should both win (or lose), a playoff would be necessary to determine who gets the league crown and the NCAA invitation. The NIT will almost certainly invite the loser.

In the ACC, second-ranked North Carolina State is ineligible for the NCAA or NIT. That leaves eight-rated North Carolina and No. 10 Maryland, the defending NIT champion. The NIT will be happy with either one.

Kentucky and Tennessee are tied for the SEC lead. They'll meet at Lexington, Ky. Thursday night, with the winner getting the title and the NCAA. The loser might get an NIT invitation, or one might go to third-place Alabama—or the NIT may decide to look elsewhere.

Only one major tourney team was in action Tuesday night, as each club in the AP Top Twenty had the night off. NIT-bound Virginia Tech boosted its record to 18-5 by whipping West Virginia 76-53.

The Gobblers, after struggling in the early going, took a 13-point halftime lead and romped in the second half. Alvin Bristow led the winners with 18 points and 10 rebounds, while Charlie Thomas added 17 points and reserve Calvin Wade scored 16 points and grabbed 13 rebounds.

Georgia Tech, getting 20 points from Steve Sherback, gave retiring Coach "Whack" Hyder a royal sendoff in his final home-court appearance by beating arch-rival Georgia 77-67. Hyder, who has a 292-270 career record in coaching, closes out his career at Georgia State Saturday night.

In other major college games, Scott Wedman scored 19 points and grabbed 19 rebounds to lead Colorado past Nebraska in a Big Eight clash 71-63. Brown of the Ivy League beat Rhode Island 71-59, and Long Island U. whipped Seton Hall 62-59.

Tommy Prothro Sues

By JOE ST. AMANT
LOS ANGELES (UPI) —

Tommy Prothro made no public statement last January when Carroll Rosenbloom fired him as head coach of the Los Angeles Rams.

Prothro, 52, an astute bridge and chess player, consulted in private with his attorney, bidding time. He spoke out in a loud voice Tuesday when he filed a $1.9 million breach of contract suit against Rosenbloom, the Rams and the Baltimore Football Club, Inc.

The suit accused Rosenbloom of "knowingly and wilfully" conspiring to induce breach of contract.

Not money but pride apparently motivated Prothro in filing the suit since Rosenbloom agreed to pay off the remaining Prothro, a successful college three years on a five-year contract. It was reported that Prothro got $90,000 a year but stipulated that he could be fired if Rosenbloom denied that this only on grounds of a morals offense.

The suit disclosed that Prothro's actual salary was $75,000 a year plus use of a new auto each year. He asked $400,000 actual damages including loss of $35,000 a year in compensation for public appearances he would have made as head coach.

The suit also asked $1 million for loss of damage to his reputation as a football coach and $500,000 punitive damages.

Prothro also asked the court to require the Rams to pay him $40,000 in death benefits.

The late Dan Reeves signed the suit since Rosenbloom agreed to pay off the remaining Prothro, a successful college three years on a five-year contract. McGrath Pin Leader

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mike McGrath has surged into the lead in the U.S. Open Bowling Tournament at Madison Square Garden.

McGrath, a 26-year-old left-hander from El Cerrito, Calif., fired an 1,860, eight-game block Tuesday night, highest of the tournament, to take a 73-pin lead in the $75,000 tournament.

McGrath, a six-time champion, strung together games of 192, 224, 259, 243, 279, 199, 206 and 258 and had a total of 3,688, a 230 average, after 16 games.

McGrath's superb performance lifted him past the hottest bowler on the tour, 36-year-old Don McCune, winner in Winston Salem and Milwaukee the past two weeks and leading money winner on the tour at $32,000. McCune had an excellent 1,789 for a total of 3,615.

Dale Glenn and Jay Robinson, both of Los Angeles, were third and fourth while veteran Earl Anthony from Tacoma, Wash., the first

Bowman's Recipe: Beat Weak Teams

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Scotty Bowman, coach of the National Hockey League's Montreal Canadiens, today revealed his club's recipe for building the 12-point lead his club enjoys atop the East Division.

"We built that lead by beating the weaker teams in the league," said Bowman, after the Canadiens had beaten the league's weakest team, the New York Islanders, 3-2 Tuesday night. Boston and the New York Rangers have a tengency of losing to the weaker teams."

Bowman must have been thinking of the Islanders' 9-7 victory over the Bruins earlier in the season and the 4-3 defeat of the Rangers last Sunday night.

In the only other NHL game Tuesday, Buffalo tied Los Angeles 2-2.

In the World Hockey Association, it was Ottawa 5, Winnipeg 2; Minnesota 4, Alberta 3 in overtime; Chicago 2, Philadelphia 1 in overtime; and Los Angeles 3, Quebec 2, also in overtime.

The Canadiens, leading the East comfortably, didn't beat the Islanders very comfortably. They bunched three goals by Yvan Cournoyer, Frank Mahovlich and Murray Wilson in nine minutes of the first period and then hung on for the victory.

"It's a bit hard getting up for a game against a team like the Islanders after playing three games in four nights," said Montreal goalie Ken Dryden, who faced 35 shots.

"It's a natural reaction of the players to take a team like the Islanders lightly," Dryden continued. "They played hard, right to the end. It takes a lot out of them—more than us. We can afford to let up once in awhile, but they cannot."

The Canadiens have done very little letting up anywhere. They are unbeaten in their last 15 road games dating back to December 27 and have earned exactly half of their 102 points away from home. Their road ice record is a phenomenal 214-9.

The Islanders weren't letting up either. They led early on a goal by Brian Spencer and closed Montreal's edge to a single goal when Lorne Henning scored in the third period.

Sam Houston Rated No. 1

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sam Houston State was selected Tuesday as the 1972-73 national small college basketball champion by the United Press International Board of Small College Coaches.

The Bearkats dethroned Eau Claire, the 1971-72 champion who dropped to sixth this season, for their first national championship.

Sam Houston survived the rigors of Lone Star Conference competition to emerge unscathed from the 1972-73 season, 18-0 in the conference and 25-0 overall. The Bearkats included among their victims second-ranked Augustana (Ill.), 64-63 in the Quincy Tournament over the Christmas holidays, and conference foe Stephen F. Austin, ranked fifth in the final ratings, which lost to Sam Houston twice—83-68 and 81-67.

The first of the two triumphs over the Lumberjacks—on Jan. 27 at Nacogdoches, Tex., the home of Stephen F. Austin—propelled Sam Houston into the No. 1 position in the ninth week of ratings.

Austin had occupied the top spot for the previous eight weeks, and had been the coaches' preseason choice, but Sam Houston, led by 6-foot-10 All-America candidate James Lister, rode to an easy road decision and with it the top spot in the rankings.

In the rematch at Sam Houston's gym in Huntsville, Tex., on Feb. 7, the Bearkats proved their first victory was no fluke, and except for a scare at home by McMurry, 68-66 on Feb. 19, won their remaining games handily, including a 77-58 victory over Southwest Texas State last week.

Augustana took the runnerup position for the season, closing with a 21-1 slate. But a shakeup occurred in the third through fifth places—as Assumption included major college Fairfield, a participant in the forthcoming National Invitation Tournament, among its victims to finish at 21-2.

Assumption thus squeezed past Philadelphia Textile and SF Austin, the Nos. 4 and 5 small college teams.

Eau Claire, Roanoke, Kentucky State and Bentley held sixth through ninth, and Akron closed out the final top 10 list. The second 10 in order were: Capital (O.), St. Mary's (Tex.), Marymount (Kan.), UW Green Bay, UC Riverside, Fairmont State, Alcorn A and M, Old Dominion, Louisiana Tech and UC Bakersfield.

Booster Bowlers of Ithaca Sixth

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — double score, 1197, came from the NCR number four team of Ithaca, N.Y., bowled into sixth place in the Booster Division to record the only change Tuesday in the top ten rankings of the American Bowling Congress tournament here.

The Ithaca squad bowled a 2,666 triple with Leonard Schmidt's 561 leading the team. The 2,666 total team score was 33 pins away from second place. The leading team total of 2,854, established by Comerde Slant of Newport, R.I., may hold up for the balance of the tournament which runs until May 30.

This total is 30 pins higher than that which won the Booster Division last year.

Scoring was low in the singles and doubles events, with the highest score, a 620, coming from John James of Wilson, N.C., in the singles. The highest

Pete Rose In Uniform

By JOE CARNICELLI
UPI Sports Writer

Pete Rose will be in uniform for the Cincinnati Reds today and he didn't need Henry Kissinger to get him into camp.

Rose, twice National League batting champion and a .300 hitter for the past eight seasons, Tuesday signed a $117,500 contract with the Reds after joking during the holdout that, "I thought it might take Henry Kissinger (presidential advisor) to get me into camp."

Rose, who hit .307 last season, had been holding out for $120,000 while the Reds were offering $115,000. They apparently settled on the difference.

Rose will begin training at the Reds' Camp in Tampa, Fla., today.

Boog Powell, Baltimore's big first baseman, signed for an estimated $85,000, a $5,000 cut after an off-year last season. Powell, who had 35 homers and 114 runs batted in in 1971, saw A's his figures drop to only 21 homers and 81 RBIs last year.

The 6-foot-5 Powell checked in at 225 pounds, the lightest weight he has reported in recent years.

The Minnesota Twins kicked off the exhibition season Tuesday on a winning note as designated pinch-hitter Larry Hise slammed two homers, one a grand slam, to spark a 12-4 rout of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Hise, obtained from St. Louis in the off-season, drove in seven runs with his two homers. Milt May and Bob Robertson homered for the Pirates.

Elsewhere in the training camps, the Cleveland Indians obtained Jerry Johnson, a relief specialist, from the San Francisco Giants on waivers. Johnson was in 48 games last season with an 8-6 record and 4.44 earned run average.

Vida Blue said he probably will sign soon with the Oakland A's.

City League to Honor Ex-Baseball Greats

KINGSTON Former members of the Kingston City Baseball League will honor four outstanding players, a former league president and umpire at their second annual testimonial banquet Wednesday, March 14, at 7:30 p.m. at Tommy's Restaurant on High Street.

The four league stars to be honored are Jack (Daisy) Schatzel, Al (Chappie) Van Derzee, Paul Misove and Art Hoffman. The umpire is Bill (Pie) Murphy and the former president Joe Kelly, retired City Editor of The Daily Freeman.

Schatzel, an outstanding first baseman in the league for many years, played with the Berardi A.C. in the mid-thirties and later for the Jones Dairy power-houses.

VanDerzee, one of the great shortstops in the league, also played with Berardi's and, like Schatzel, went on to Jones Dairy. Paul Misove, a pitching stalwart, had many good seasons with teams such as Taiclets and Jones Dairy.

In addition to working in the City League, Murphy umpired for the heavy semi-pro teams in the area and the Kingston Recreations.

Hoffman, the oldest man in the contingent, preceded many of those being honored. He played with Pucker Davis' West Shore team in the late 1930s and with many well known independent teams like the Rond-out A.C., Wilbur, Red Sox and others.

Because of the limited seating capacity, early ticket reservations are advised. Tickets may be purchased from the following members of the committee: Ed Murphy, Joe Messinger, Bud Zoller, Pucker Davis and Jim (Babe) Volker.

Capri and Raiders Sawyer Finalists

The Capri 400 team, which usurped the SAA crown from three-year titleholder, Acker's Raiders, on the final day of the regular season, moved into the championship game for a rematch as both the Capri and the Raiders triumphed in the opening round of the playoffs.

Capri dumped fourth-place Naccarato's Insurance, 95-77, while Acker's knocked off Hudson Valley Tire with a little more of a struggle, 82-83.

Rod Chando, the league's leading scorer, broke loose for 31 points as Capri pulled safely away from a slim four-point halftime lead. Scoring only 32 points in the first half, the winners put it all together after the intermission as Ray Lindhorst added 18, Don Komosa threw in 16 and Mike Derrenbacher hit for 14.

The losers got a strong game from Jack Naccarato who collected 29 points, and from Jim Dill who had 18 and 16 rebounds.

Acker's, who have dominated the SAA's post-season play the past three seasons, ran up a 13 point lead at halftime then watched it get wiped out. John Kelly and Craig Burkhardt led the Tirenmen on a rally that knotted things up at 64-64 in the final period before key buckets by Larry Marcus and Ron Thomas pulled the Raiders out of the fire.

Pistol Pete Kools scored a game high 24 points for the winners while fourth-period heroes Marcus and Thomas split 25. Burkhardt had 23 and Kelly had 20 points for the Tirenmen.

Game time Saturday at the Donlon Aud is 1:30 p.m. for the grand finale. With history as the oddsmaker, the Capri is favored to duplicate the Raider feats of past years and make a clean sweep of the title.

New Principal In Highland

John J. George of Cairo has been appointed Highland Elementary School principal according to announcement made today by Donald C. Baines, supervising principal of the school district.

The position has been open, since Dec. 14 when the previous principal resigned to take a post in Albany.

There were 41 applicants for the position. Applicants were screened down to three for presentation to the board of education which unanimously agreed to employ George.

The new principal has a Bachelor of Science Degree in Elementary Education from the State University at Albany.

Philip Hannifan, chairman of the Nevada Gaming Control Board, warned casinos that the seizure of 500 pair of crooked dice in Minneapolis indicates a possible influx of cheaters into this state.

The cheating dice, taken in a raid two weeks ago, carried the insignias of 25 Nevada casinos.

Glaucoma Clinic In High Falls

MARBLETOWN The Rondout Valley Lions Club will conduct a glaucoma screening clinic in conjunction with a sugar diabetes test as a community service for residents of the Town of Marbletown and Rosendale, 35 years or older, on Saturday, March 17 at the High Falls Fire House, High Falls between 1 and 5 p.m.

According to Myron Guthrie, a member of the Lions Sight Conservation Committee, "The needless tragedy of glaucoma is that although the disease rarely gives any warning, a simple test can discover its presence before permanent damage is done."

One of every eight blind Americans is a victim of glaucoma; it is the second greatest cause of blindness in the country.

The warheads were from American torpedoes made in 1935 and 1941, authorities said.

Live Fish

EUREKA, Calif. (UPI) — Four live warheads from World War II era torpedoes have been pulled from the Pacific off the northern California coast by a fishing boat, the Navy reported Tuesday.

The 800-pound warheads were dragged from the bottom off Bodega Bay by the fishing vessel Advance. Owner Rich Hamen said his drag lines caught them last weekend at a depth of 400 fathoms.

A Navy demolition team defused the torpedoes.

The warheads were from American torpedoes made in 1935 and 1941, authorities said.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

WORD WANT: (Q.) Most of the young chicks (13, 14, 15, etc.) I can talk to without acting like I'm scared speechless. This one chick named Peg, however, I can't say anything but "Hi!" to when she's around.

I've known her six years. How could I improve?—Time to Talk in Texas.

(A.) If you've known Peg six years, you must know what color her eyes are, and her hair, and what style of clothes she usually wears, and how pretty she really is. You can compliment her on any of these.

Maybe, also, you know whether she has a brother or a sister, and what kind of car she comes to school in, and whether she likes tennis or archery or baseball or some other sport, and the courses she takes in school, and what boys and girls she is friendly with.

Every one of these interests or background facts is a subject you can talk to Peg about. That is a lot more than just "Hi."

Also you can talk to her about whether it is raining or the sun is shining or it is cold or warm when you see her. Get busy. Talk. You can do it.

UNDECIDED: (Q.) I am 14 and I don't know what I want to be when I graduate. Also I worry about some bad things I have done in the past. Also I don't much like the school I am going to.

I want to transfer to another school where I have more friends. But when I go to the counselor to talk about a transfer, I just cry and leave. I don't really know if I want to stay or go.

Sometimes when I am in my room I cry. I am so confused about life. Please help me.—Tears in North Carolina.

(A.) All of us get bewildered at times. Life is so big. There is so much of it. But there is a way we can live with it, if we will.

Do this. Live today. Not tomorrow or yesterday. Try to be happy and cheerful today. Smile today. Do not worry about next week or next year or 10 years from now. Have faith that God will take care of you then, as He is taking care of you now.

KING GREET SUBJECTS — Rex, King of Carnival, greets his "loyal subjects", leaning from lacy grided balconies along St. Charles Avenue as Mardi Gras is celebrated in New Orleans, La. Wounded Knee Standoff Goes On WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (UPI) — The armed Indian occupation of the settlement of Wounded Knee boiled down today to a standoff between militants and the federal government over who runs the Oglala Sioux Pine Ridge Reservation.

The government and the words of its chief Justice Department spokesman here said it has "come as far as it can come" and it is now up to the militants to decide whether "we can reach a peaceful conclusion without bloodshed." The Indians at Wounded Knee in a counter threat delivered to U.S. command post headquarters Tuesday night said they might move out of Wounded Knee if Washington ousts the present tribal government.

Dennis Banks, one of the leaders of the American Indian Movement (AIM) which terminated the seizure of Wounded Knee eight days ago, told UPI by telephone early today that in the final meeting between the two sides Tuesday night the government "wanted to know if we will leave if they fire two Bureau of Indian Affairs officials and Oglala Sioux tribal president Dick Wilson."

Banks said the Indians agreed that if Wilson, and the two officials—BIA chief Stanley Lyman and Wyman Babby, BIA area director at Aberdeen, S.D.—were fired, the Indians would pull out of Wounded Knee.

"We are awaiting word and we don't expect a reply until morning," Banks said. On the face of it, the situation was an armed deadlock. Tempers ran high at Wounded Knee. Young Indians who had welcomed reporters as friends now pointed rifles at them.

AIM leaders promptly announced all cease-fire agreements between them and federal marshals ringing the town were off.

Nevertheless, even in Wounded Knee there was a sense of matters winding down.

Government officials indicated the main controversy on the table was AIM's demand that Wilson and Lyman be ousted.

Wilson said, "The Interior Department has no authority to suspend the elected government of this reservation, especially on the advice of those hoodlums and clowns."

There were indications Lyman and top Interior Department spokesman William M. Soller agreed with Wilson, who last weekend threatened to lead "800 or 900 guns to take Wounded Knee back" from the militants who took over this historic hamlet near the site where more than 200 Indians were massacred by the calvary in 1890.

AIM charges Wilson runs the reservation as a dictator, backed up by a strong arm "goon squad" of hit first, ask questions later Sioux.

Lyman is in Wilson's pocket, AIM charges.

Tuscaroras on Rampage

LUMBERTON, N.C. (UPI) — About 100 Indians, watched by shot-gun-carrying police, milled around the courthouse until shortly before daybreak today following a destructive rampage through downtown Lumberton.

The Indians, from the Tuscarora tribe, began dispersing as rainclouds gathered and the weather turned chilly.

State troopers and sheriff's deputies joined police in patrolling the city, located near the South Carolina border about 35 miles below Fayetteville.

"Law and order will be maintained in Lumberton," said Police Chief Wilbur Lovette.

Two carloads of armed Indians rode through the town shortly after midnight, closely followed by police, but they later roared off "into the country" without causing an incident.

Store windows were smashed and cars damaged Tuesday night by Indians in an estimated 45-car caravan. Several of the cars bore signs reading: "We support Wounded Knee," a reference to a protest demonstration by Indians at Wounded Knee, S.D.

Three police cars were damaged as officers rammed the caravan to break up the vandalism, and several Indians were reported hurt. Police arrested 12 men.

"They had a riot, in other words," said police dispatcher Ben Smith.

It was the worst Indian disorder in this area since the Lumbees raided a Ku Klux Klan rally and cross burning in 1957, chasing the Klansmen from a pasture with war-whoops and scattered gunfire.

The courthouse, located on a square in the center of the town business district, was closed to all except policemen and reporters. Officers armed with shotguns stood atop the steps.

Shortly before midnight, a building adjacent to a predominantly Indian school was damaged by fire. The school itself was unharmed.

The Magnolia School, about five miles north of here, has been the scene of unrest for several months, with student demands for a change in administration.

Although the demonstration was linked to the Indian occupation of Wounded Knee, the discontent has been fueled by local issues.

An estimated 60 per cent of the county's student population is Indian, but Indians account for as little as 20 per cent of the enrollment in some municipal districts.

Tight Security at N. Ireland Polls

BELFAST (UPI) — Barbed wire barricades, machinegun nests and battle-equipped troops today guarded polling stations where a million voters ballot Thursday in a historic Northern Ireland referendum.

The tight security underscored the hazards of voting in the violence-charged atmosphere that included another murder Tuesday, a sniper slaying of a British soldier.

The killing raised the death toll in 3½ years of violence among Protestants, Roman Catholics, the Irish Republican Army and British security forces to 741. The dead man, Coldstream Guardsman Anton Brown, 22, was the 10th soldier to die this year in Northern Ireland.

In the referendum Thursday, voters will put on record their preference for the political future of Northern Ireland.

Each voter will be asked to answer two questions:

—Do you want Northern Ireland to remain part of the United Kingdom?

—Do you want Northern Ireland to be joined with the Republic of Ireland outside the United Kingdom?

It was the first time in Northern Ireland's history such questions were being asked in the direct form of a plebiscite, although they have been inherent in every general election since 1921.

The outcome of the poll was not considered in doubt. Leaders of the Protestant majority, which traditionally favors union with Britain, asked their followers to give it full support in order to reinforce the link with London.

Spokesmen for the Catholic minority, about one-third of Northern Ireland's 1½ million population, urged a total boycott.

It was intended to reassure the Protestant majority that the border between Northern Ireland and the Irish Republic in the south would remain as long as the majority wished it to stay.

Protestant extremists in the Ulster Defense Association said they would resist with force any attempt to point the province toward unity with the republic.

On the other hand, the illegal IRA warned it will step up its campaign of shooting and bombing until the British government makes a statement on eventual Irish unity.

The British army hopes to hold the peace until political leaders on both sides work out a compromise.

8-Cent Stamp May Cost 20 Cents by '84

WASHINGTON (AP) — Today's 8-cent stamp will cost 20 cents in 1984 if present trends continue, and 38 cents otherwise, senators were told today as they launched an inquiry into Postal Service operations.

The estimate came from Sen. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., chairman of the Senate Post Office Committee.

McGee said citizens will be able to send a first-class letter for 20 cents—a 250-per-cent increase—if the Postal Service freezes employment, mechanization absorbs the expected increase in mail volume, and pay increases do not exceed 5.5 per cent a year.

McGee tossed out what he called those "very sobering figures" before calling on Postmaster General Elmer T. Klassen for an explanation of "deterioration in postal service."

McGee said committee investigations already have confirmed that it is Postal Service policy to reduce costs at the expense of good service by delaying mail rather than expediting delivery.

Postal Service employment has dropped some 40,000 in the past two years since the agency replaced the old Post Office Department, and postal workers all over the country are complaining about mandatory overtime running 10 to 20 hours a week.

Some of the loudest complaints about postal service have come from congressmen. Many have complained that weeks sometimes were required for letters to move 20 or 25 miles.

The Postal Service was established by Congress in 1970 and given the duty to "provide prompt, reliable and efficient services to patrons in all areas."

McGee said mounting criticisms in the past 18 months "suggest that that policy is not being followed."

Controls Back on Oil Industry

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has taken a major step to show that its Phase 3 anti-inflation program has muscle by reimposing price controls on the oil industry.

The 23 largest oil companies will be limited generally to price increases of 1 per cent for most petroleum products on a weighted annual average, over the price in effect on Jan. 10, 1973. Gasoline and home-heating oil are among products covered.

A weighted annual average is the average price during all of the year; prices could be higher at some times and lower at others.

John T. Dunlop, director of the Cost of Living Council, said in announcing the controls Tuesday that they are "designed to prevent increasing pressure for higher crude-oil and petroleum-product prices from triggering inflationary price increases."

He said it is "not a punitive measure" against the 23 companies, which account for approximately 95 per cent of gross sales of the oil industry. There are some exceptions to the 1-per-cent price-increase limit; increases up to 1.5 per cent would be allowed if justified by costs.

But any increase above 1.5 per cent is subject to profit-margin limitations and to pre-notification rules, the council said. That limitation restricts companies to the average profit for the best two of the previous four years.
